2 NATIONS AIM TO HAVE REICH IN ARMS TALK

HERRIOT IN PARLEY WITH MACDONALD

Paris Condition That Smaller Powers Also Sit in Is Considered.

London, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—France and Great Britain, represented by the two premiers, agreed today that it is essential to get Germany back into the World Disarmament Conference if that meeting is to achieve any constructive results.

All morning and up to late this evening Premier Herriot and Prime Minister MacDonald, with other officials of both governments, talked about disarmament at No. 10 Downing street. Tomorrow the discussion will be resumed.

Agreement Learned.

As often happens in such meetings as this the official communique gave little information. The statement issued this evening said merely that there had been a discussion which was to be resumed.

From other sources, however, it was learned that they had agreed upon the necessity of Germany's participation in the Geneva meetings and that the British government still believes Germany's claim to arms equality should be dealt with in a special four-power conference which Great Britain suggested some time ago.

Study French Proposal.

It was understood that the conferees considered today another French condition that tthe smaller powers of Europe be asked to take part in the proposed conference.

Tomorrow the premier will resume his acquaintance with United States Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon at a luncheon in the French Embassy. Norman Davis, American delegate to the Geneva arms conference, also will be a guest.

M. Herriot leaves for Paris tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Morrell now is employed in the general counsel's office of the Treasury Department.

Mrs. Mitchell and Brig. Gen. Mitchell have been divorced for more than ten years. She has three children by her first marriage, two girls and a boy.

Threat of Death Faced By 300,000 Chinese

Nanking, China, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The desperate plight of Chinese military forces in Manchuria was grimly described today in a statement by the war office of the National government.

With winter coming on 300,000 volunteer troops opposing the Japanese in the three Manchurian provinces "face death from starvation, exposure or at the hands of the Japanese," the statement said.

Debuchi to Return Here; Rumor Definitely Denied

Tokyo (Friday), Oct. 14 (A.P.).—The foreign office announced today that Ambassador Katsuji Debuchi definitely is returning to his post at Washington about the middle of December.

There had been reports when the ambassador left Washington several months ago that he would not resume his post.

WOMAN HURLS TWO CHILDREN 16 FLOORS

Divorced Wife of Rich Man Follows Them in Hotel Suicide Leap.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—After throwing two small children to their deaths, Mrs. Aurelia Lorenz, 31, a divorcee, committed suicide late today when she leaped from a sixteenth floor window of a downtown hotel.

The children, Vivian, 5, and Milton, 4, were the daughter and son of the woman's brother, Rudolph Libo, of Milwaukee. Mrs. Lorenz and the children were instantly killed when they struck the pavement at the feet of pedestrians.

Mrs. Lorenz, identified as the divorced wife of Joseph Lorenz, wealthy Milwaukee paving contractor and sportsman, had tied the children's hands and feet with stockings. She left a note, authorities said, which gave mistreatment from her brother and other relatives as the reason for the act.

Mrs. Lorenz, who had been living at the home of her brother here since she was divorced a year ago, registered at the Schroeder Hotel yesterday under the name of Doris O'Brien, Chicago. Shortly after she left the hotel today, hotel employes said, she returned in a taxi with the children.

Authorities learned she had gone to her brother's home and offered to take the children for a walk.

New Farm Picket Lines Formed in Minnesota

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—New farm picket lines were established today in two communities of Wright County, scene of combat in which four persons were injured yesterday, but the day passed without violence.

RECORD CROWD GUESTS AT FETE AT WHITE HOUSE

More Than 4,000 Present as Social Season Is Begun in Advance.

JUDICIARY HONORED AT STATE RECEPTION

President, Suffering Cut on Hand, Is Unable to Greet 1,500 of Visitors.

With more than 4,000 persons attending, the judiciary reception at the White House last night, the first of the social season, was by far the largest which has been held during the Hoover administration and was also termed the largest night gathering in the history of the Executive Mansion.

After shaking hands continuously for 1 hour and 40 minutes, the President and the First Lady asked, on account of fatigue, to be excused while a line of between 1,000 and 1,500 persons still waited to file past them.

It also was stated that the President had suffered a small cut on his right hand during his hand shaking ordeal and when it began to bleed he felt it would be better to discontinue the reception line.

Tired From Active Day.

A few minutes after the President and Mrs. Hoover had retired from the formal reception downstairs, Dr. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, announced the President was "feeling fine," but was still slightly tired from his active day.

"The strain proved too great," Dr. Boone said. "The President could have gone on, but it would not have been wise. We conferred and I counseled that the line be stopped.

"His hand was bruised from the handclasps of more than 3,000 men and women. Rings pressed into the flesh as vigorous handclasps rung the President's fingers. He wanted to go on, but we asked him to stop and finally he did."

Possibly Largest in History.

Chief Usher Isaac H. Hoover, who has witnessed the events of 43 social seasons, declared the reception was "the largest night gathering at the White House in its history."

The reception, which usually is given later in the season following the diplomatic reception, was advanced to last night in order that members of the American Bar Association who are in Washington this week might attend.

The Executive Mansion presented a brilliant scene as lines of cars rolled into the drives depositing parties of beautifully gowned women and handsomely attired men.

Mrs. Hoover wore a gown of black and gold brocade fashioned on prin-

Tokyo Thinks Professor Wrote Lytton Report

Tokyo (Friday), Oct. 14 (U.P.).—There is a growing belief on the part of Japanese officials that the Lytton League of Nations report on Manchuria was the work of hired experts, and not of the commissioners appointed by the league, a government spokesman declared today.

The government believes that Prof. Young, of Johns Hopkins University, had a part in writing the report. The spokesman charged Young with pronounced bias toward China in the dispute with Japan over Manchuria.

CRASH VICTIM

HENRY C. LITTLEFIELD.

CAPT. CALHOUN HELD IN TRAFFIC FATALITY

Shipping Board Official Is Killed in Crash With Attorney's Car.

Capt. Clarence C. Calhoun, prominent attorney, of Chevy Chase, Md., was ordered held for action of a coroner's jury last night, after the automobile he was driving, en route to the corner stone laying exercises at the new Supreme Court Building yesterday afternoon, was in collision with another machine, causing fatal injuries to Henry C. Littlefield, chief of the Educational Division, Bureau of Research, United States Shipping Board.

Capt. Calhoun was booked at police headquarters and later released in the custody of his attorney to appear at an inquest scheduled for 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The accident occurred at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, a few moments before President Hoover and members of his party, also en route to the corner stone ceremonies, passed the intersection. The presidential car was about 100 feet away at the time.

Mr. Littlefield was thrown from his machine by the force of the impact. The car ran onto the sidewalk and crashed into the side of a building. All windows in the machine were shattered and Mr. Littlefield plunged from the left-hand door as it swung open.

Witnesses declared Capt. Calhoun's car was traveling east along Pennsylvania avenue and Mr. Littlefield made a left turn into Tenth street. An Emergency Hospital ambulance, which was passing at the time, took Mr. Littlefield to the hospital. He was pronounced dead a short time later.

Physicians said he suffered a fractured skull and severe lacerations and bruises.

Mr. Littlefield was 49 years old and lived with his family in Clarendon, Va. He had been with the Shipping Board for many years.

Capt. Calhoun, owner of the famous Rossdhu Castle on Brookeville road in Maryland, is 69 years old and is widely known in law circles. Rossdhu Castle, formerly his home, was recently leased to a Washington corporation for use as a restaurant, featuring dining and dancing.

Mr. Littlefield is survived by his wife and one son, Jerome H. Littlefield.

Policeman's Son Dead in Auto Fall

Raymond Williams, 4, Is Believed to Have Opened Door at Play.

Plunging from the door of his father's automobile as they drove on Anacostia road near the District line late yesterday, 4-year-old Raymond Thomas Williams, son of Policeman William H. Williams, attached to Police Headquarters, suffered injuries that cost his life a few hours later in Casualty Hospital.

The youngster was riding in the rear seat of the machine with his two sisters, Jean Francis, 3, and Bessie, 1. Mrs. Williams was in front with her husband. The family was en route to their home in Lanham, Md.

The boy's father expressed the belief that the child was playing with the handle of the door when it swung open.

2 Indicted in Kidnaping Enter Plea of Insanity

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Two Brooklyn insurance brokers who had confessed they had kidnaped 8-year-old John Arthur Russell, son of a wealthy stock broker, because of pressing financial difficulties, were indicted today by the Kings County grand jury on charges of kidnaping and assault in the second degree. Bail was fixed at $50,000 each.

The brokers, Allen W. August, 35, and George T. Clarke, 26, pleaded not guilty, the latter by reason of insanity. William S. Geoghan, district attorney for Kings County, said both men had made complete confessions. Both August and Clarke are married and each has a son.

BAR ASKS NEW LEVY IN PLACE OF INCOME TAX

Wants Some Forms Not So Susceptible to Fluctuation.

MITCHELL SUGGESTS CRIME LAW REFORM

Charges Courts Too Ready to Recognize Stipulations for Delays.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A shift from income taxation to "forms of taxes less susceptible to sharp fluctuation" was urged on Congress yesterday by the American Bar Association.

The action was taken over protest that it virtually puts the association on record in favor of the sales tax. A motion to refer the resolution back to committe failed by a close vote.

The committee on Federal taxation was directed to go before both the House ways and mean committee and the Senate finance committee and express this view.

Under the resolution, Congress would be asked "to decrease substantially the dependence for revenue on taxes on net incomes and to secure a larger proportion of the necessary Federal revenues from forms of taxes less susceptible to sharp fluctuation as a result of changes in general business and professional activity."

Mitchell Urges Reforms.

Earlier the delegates, returned from corner-stone laying exercises at the new Supreme Court building, heard Attorney General Mitchell espouse reform in criminal procedure to expedite justice and reduce administration costs.

Immediately afterward the association resolved itself into bitter debate over limiting the jurisdiction of the Federal courts, which ended in resolutions opposing four bills for this purpose, one of which had the support of President Hoover and the Attorney General.

The resolution urging decreased income taxes was introduced by Robert E. Coulson, of New York City, chairman of the Federal taxtion committee of the association. The fight against it was led by C. F. Keyes, of Minnesota, who held it a political man of the Federal taxation committing the organization to the sales tax.

Text Was Toned Down.

Originally the resolution had gone deeper, but was revised in committee, to take out language "that might be considered critical of Congress."

The phraseology stricken in committee held "the experience of the past decade has sufficiently indicated that the revenue acts passed by Congress during the period have involved too great a dependence for our Federal revenues upon taxes upon net income at high rates; that this fiscal policy has, during prosperous years, encouraged excessive governmental expenditures, because of the resulting rapid increase in Federal revenues, while in times of depression this policy has produced large and unexpected Federal deficits, and has led Congress to turn to untried and hastily devised forms of emergency taxation, prejudicial to prompt economy recovery."

The Federal taxation committee put forward another resolution, condemning as "unwise and unjust" the economy bill provision reducing the rate of interest allowed on refund of

Borah Seeks War On Extravagance

Says Country Would Not Suffer If Expenses Were Cut 50 Per Cent.

Buhl, Idaho, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah, independent Republican, of Idaho, demanded in a campaign speech here tonight that "the people unite and organize public opinion" against high public expenditures because there is no other way to stop this "devastating extravagance."

"The whole trouble is, whenever a campaign is over, it becomes necessary to find places for a lot of politicians who have never been able to make a living for themselves elsewhere," he said. "I believe in political parties—sometimes."

The senator declared the earnings of the people in the Nation have been reduced $18,000,000,000 and added, "I insist men in public life should take a cut in salary in a corresponding amount." He said the State and Nation would not suffer if expenditures were cut 50 per cent.

Coach Stagg Forced To Retirement at 70

U. of C. Trustees Decree Age Limit Applies to Famous Mentor.

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY.

Chicago, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Amos Alonzo Stagg, grand old man of American football, was forced out as director of athletics and head football coach at the University of Chicago tonight after 40 years of service.

The reason given for Stagg's retirement, coming as a stunning surprise to the intercollegiate athletic world and to Stagg himself, was that a rule was invoked which provides that no member of the faculty shall continue to hold a post after reaching the age of 70. Stagg became 70 years of age on August 16.

The board of trustees of the university created a new position for Stagg as chairman of the committee on intercollegiate athletics, but Stagg gave no indication he would accept. He said, with a feeling of crushed spirit, that he felt physically able to carry on for at least 15 or 20 years longer and that he was not content with his enforced retirement.

Stagg's retirement will not become effective until the end of the collegiate year, June 30, 1933.

His successor will be Thomas Nelson Metcalf, director of athletics and chairman of physical education at the Iowa State College. Metcalf will name Stagg's successor as head football coach.

The selection may be Orville "Pat" Page, now Stagg's assistant and himself a noted gridiron star at the University of Chicago some fifteen years ago. Page was head football coach at Indiana University before joining Stagg's staff.

Stagg, the dean of American football coaches, was heart-broken over the action of the trustees, but accepted it with the same splendid spirit of sportsmanship that characterized his 40 years of coaching record at Chicago.

Two days ago Stagg returned from his greatest personal triumph—that of holding Yale, his alma mater, to a

'BLACK SHIRT' GANG REVISITS ST. MARYS

Enters Leonardtown Store and Escapes With $225; Note Left in Till.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Leonardtown, Md., Oct. 13.—Reappearance of the dreaded "Black Shirt" gang here early today brought renewed activity to citizens and police authorities of St. Marys County when it feared another outbreak in the wave of holdups and robberies was again upon the peaceful community after a respite of only three days.

Unlike former appearances, the terrorizing gang changed its tactics, and this time struck in the early morning hours, forced entrance to a store in the heart of Leonardtown and escaped with $225 in cash.

When J. A. Cecil, proprietor of the store, opened the doors this morning he found the place ransacked. Upon reaching his cash drawer he found it open and empty. In place of money, a note, scrawled in pencil, lay in the till. It read:

"Please have Herbert Tareton cig the next time we come."

The note was signed with a large black circle, followed by the word "shirt."

Cecil was the ninth victim of a gang, which for the last two weeks

INSULL, IN ATHENS, REFUSES PASSPORT

Chicagoans Ready to Leave to Bring Him Back; Greece Orders Inquiry.

(Associated Press.)

An hour after word was received that Samuel Insull had refused to give up his passport in Athens, Greece, authorities at Chicago announced yesterday two assistant State's attorneys would leave within 24 hours for Europe.

The prosecutors, it was announced, would carry warrants, indictments and depositions of witnesses, and stop off in Washington to make legal arrangements for extradition of the 73-year-old former utility owner to Chicago on charges of embezzlement and larceny.

A Federal Court judge in Chicago called officers of five banks to testify concerning loans made to two now bankrupt Insull companies. Debenture holders of the firms had been guaranteed the companies would not be mortgaged.

Insull informed the American consul at Athens he would not give

Canal Zone Head Quits; His Successor Named

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday accepted the resignation of Brig. Gen. Harry Burgess as Governor of the Panama Canal and appointed Lieut. Col. Julian L. Schley to succeed him. No reason was given for the resignation, although it was pointed out that Burgess' term would end ordinarily within a month or two.

The appointment of Col. Schley, it was said, follows a custom of many years of advancing the engineering officer of the canal to the governorship when a vacancy occurs. Col. Schley now holds the engineering post there.

GOV. ROOSEVELT DEFINES VIEWS ON IDLE RELIEF

Says Federal Help Is Obligatory When States Fail.

ANSWERS QUESTIONS OF SOCIAL WORKERS

Asserts "Nest Egg" Should Be Laid for Purpose in Days of Prosperity.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt said tonight in a radio speech that the Federal Government was obligated to step in and help care for the unemployed "when it becomes apparent that States and communities are unable to take care of the necessary relief work."

Speaking in reply to a questionnaire sent him by ten welfare and social workers, the Democratic presidential nominee laid down as his first relief principle that "the primary duty rests on the community, through local government and private agencies, to take care of the relief of unemployment."

"But we then come to a situation where there are so many people out of work that local funds are insufficient," he said. "It seems clear to me that the organized society known as the State comes into the picture at this point. In other words, the obligation of government is extended to the next higher unit."

Funds for Public Works.

The New York Governor told how his State had dealt with the relief problem and said that where the State was unable to fulfill the obligation it "becomes the positive duty of the Federal Government to step in and help."

Regarding appropriations for public works, Mr. Roosevelt said "it would be advisable for governments of all kinds to set up in times of prosperity what might be called a nest egg to be used for public works in times of depression."

Mr. Roosevelt indorsed the idea of a system of unemployment insurance reserves made compulsory by the States and said that he had favored the Wagner measure to set up a coordinated system of boards of employers and employes. The measure was vetoed by President Hoover.

In concluding his speech from the long, mirrored drawing room of the executive mansion, the New York Governor added an appeal "to let nothing interfere with the duty and obligatic of coming forward as individuals and as groups to the support of the unemployed and the support of their dependents during the coming winter.

Plans Made for New Tour.

The speech rounded out a busy day for the New York executive. While working on it he had been frequently interrupted by callers. Among these were Gov.-elect Louis J. Brann of Maine and Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville, Mass. These two predicted he would carry Maine and Massachusetts.

Meanwhile, plans were going ahead for assembling again the train that bore the nominee to California and back. His forthcoming trip into the hotly disputed Mississippi Valley territory, five of the border States and through a section of the old South will traverse fifteen States with a total electoral vote sufficient to elect him President.

The fifteen States have a total electoral vote of 268, two more than needed for election. Of these, 182 are held by the first five States he will cross—New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois.

Striking Miner Is Killed By Guardsmen in Illinois

More Troops Sent to Coal Field Area After Other Casualties Result From Numerous Clashes and Tension Increases; Dissenters Seek to Halt Operations.

Taylorsville, Ill., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Andy Ganis, striking miner, was shot to death tonight in a clash between national guardsmen and members of the newly formed Progressive Union, climaxing a day of disorders in the central Illinois coal field.

Ganis was shot near his home at Tovey, near here. The wounding of a rural mail carrier, name Butterfield, was reported from Langleyville as tension increased during a series of clashes between employed miners, guarded by troops, and striking coal diggers.

Alarmed at the steady increase of guerilla warfare, officials tonight increased the National Guard detachment here to seven full companies, and issued orders to break up all gatherings. Even the local Republican and Democratic headquarters were ordered closed by troops in the belief that trouble was being fomented there by striking miners.

Hostilities started shortly after daybreak when a group of men attacked a national guardsmen on duty at the Peabody coal mine. The guardsman was disarmed and severely slugged.

Another group of strikers marched on the home of Ike McGuire, an employed miner, only to be met with a volley of shotgun fire that crippled several members.

Retreating, the attackers riddled the house with bullets but McGuire escaped uninjured.

Several persons were clubbed and beaten in fights that ensued when guardsmen raided a saloon where an improvised strikers' headquarters had been set up. Several strikers were arrested.

Reports that a large cache of dynamite had been placed in a barn at the home of Mrs. Frank Fesser brought a detachment of troops to the place. As the guardsmen approached a number of men fled, but 30 were overtaken and arrested after an exchange of shots. No one was injured and troops were unable to find any explosives.

Concert Replaces Speech At Convocation of G. W.

Haydn Composition Is Played by National Symphony Orchestra as 168 Receive Certificates and Degrees in Constitution Hall.

The exquisite music of Haydn's Symphony in D Major, played by the National Symphony Orchestra, was heard in place of a graduation address by the 168 persons awarded certificates and degrees by the George Washington University at Constitution Hall last night.

The fall convocation of the university, attended by members of the Diplomatic Corps and of official and social Washington as well as those prominent in academic and music circles, was unique in the annals of American academic assemblies.

The gathering celebrated three distinct occasions. It was the university's official observance of the Haydn bicentennial, marking the 200th anniversary of the birth of the Austrian composer, the first great modern in the history of music.

Its second phase was the recognizance by the university of a musician of the present, Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, to whom was awarded the degree of doctor of music.

With it Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, read the citation—"Productive musician, friendly leader, in whom teeming imagination and constant love of beauty, tempered by suffering and triumph, join with us in wholesome faith and artistic skill to give us in every sense a creative life."

Conferring of degrees to graduates of the junior college, senior college and the professional schools of the university was the third phase of the convocation.

A second selection, "Die Meistersinger" of Wagner, was presented by the orchestra, because of its dedication to the great poets and musicians of all time made it signally appropriate to an occasion which paid homage to two musicians.

The list of graduates awarded degrees by George Washington University will be found on page 3.

PRESIDENT GREETS B. E. F. DELEGATION

Resolution Censuring Him Is, However, Handed to Gen. Hines.

(Associated Press.)

A delegation from the Bonus Expeditionary Force marched up to the White House yesterday and was received by President Hoover, after abandoning the announced purpose of presenting to him personally a resolution of censure.

"Capt." Hoke Smith, field commander of the B. E. F., stepped into the President's office at the head of eight men and two women. As Mr. Hoover spoke, Smith rested on his desk a big envelope. He later handed it to Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, who stood beside the President.

The resolution it contained, as described by Smith, declared members of the B. E. F. desired to "severely censure" the President for the military eviction of the organization from Washington last July. It demanded also, in petition form, that B. E. F. members be given clothing, cots, mattresses and blankets and a food allowance of at least 15 cents a day for each man.

As soon as the delegation left, Walter H. Newton, one of the President's secretaries called newspapermen to his ofice. He dictated to them a statement quoting Mr. Hoover as saying he was pleased the bonus seekers had decided not "to repeat the scenes that occurred in Washington during the last spring and summer."

"Commander Smith stated to the President," Newton said, "that they wished to pay their respects, tender their support and pledge their loyalty to the President and the Constitution of the United States.

"The President expressed his pleasure at that statement and told them that they would recognize that he disagreed in point of view with some of their objectives and that he had to consider 25,000,000 families in the United States in these times of distress as well as members of special groups."

Newton quoted the Chief Executive further as saying that he was pleased they were "not presenting him with a petition which had been reported in the press, as it contained statements offensive to the dignity of the office of the President and that he was glad they had decided not to present it at the White House."

Party Courteously Received.

Smith told newspapermen as he left the executive offices that the delegation had been "shown every courtesy" and had "pledged our unswerving allegiance to the Constitution and the flag." He was closeted with Newton for more than an hour before seeing the President, while members of his delegation waited in the lobby outside. At one time they asked to be allowed to join their leader. A secretary took notes during part of the time Smith and Newton talked.

Newton told newspapermen he had not seen the B. E. F. statement, but "the petition addressed to the President purported to contain some ideas as to what should be done in the way of veterans' legislation." He added the "envelope containing the paper" had been handed to Gen. Hines and that he had promised to consider some of the suggestions.

The B. E. F. resolution, as handed to newspapermen by Smith, cited an appropriation of $50,000 for the "entertainment of French veterans" and legislation permitting a loan of bedding to the American Legion.

Text of Resolution.

"We, the delegates of the B. E. F. in national convention assembled at Uniontown, Pa.," the petition said, "do herewith demand that the same consideration be shown these destitute, honorably discharged World War veterans that was shown our more fortunate comrades in the above mentioned public laws."

It demanded also immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates and pensions for widows, orphans and dependent parents of World War Veterans.

The two women who accompanied the delegation were Mrs. Gertrude Frew and Mrs. Myrtle Crawford, who said they were Los Angeles nurses.

The others in the group were Fred Allamong, Sacramento; Arthur A. Tabb, San Diego; T. A. Charleton, Baltimore; P. D. Burke, Los Angeles; W. E. Jordan, Savannah, Ga.; Mike Thomas, Camden, N. J.; R. Dessoff, Cleveland, and George Spence, Los Angeles.

Later Smith conferred for an hour with Gen. Hines, and last night the B. E. F. officer issued a statement saying the reception of his group by the President proved the organization was not "the 'criminal group' that was so viciously attacked by the Attorney General during the middle of September," and that the severe censure mentioned in the resolution presented to Gen. Hines "was directed at Mr. Hoover, the individual * * * and not at the Chief Executive of the country."

Sackett to Take Stump In Behalf of Hoover

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Frederick M. Sackett, jr., Ambassador to Germany, planned a campaign for President Hoover today that will take him into the Midwest.

"I am spending my enforced vacation, under the economy act," the diplomat said, "trying to do what I can toward the President's reelection. Mr. Hoover's foreign policies already have had a remarkable effect in sustaining confidence in Europe. World recovery from the depression may be immeasurably impeded if his policies should be halted by a change in administration."

Text of Roosevelt's Radio Speech Urging Federal and State Aid for Idle

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Gov. Roosevelt in a radio speech tonight said:

I am speaking to you from my desk in the executive mansion in Albany on a subject which is not in the narrower sense of the word political, but which because it is connected with government vitally affects the lives of almost every man, woman and child in the United States.

I can not, of course, answer the hundreds of questions which come to me in every mail, but a letter signed by ten of the leading social welfare workers permits me to use their questions as a text for the expression of certain great basic principles which are vital to us in this time of stress.

The first question asks my position in relation to the duty of the Federal and State and local governments to provide funds and aid for the relief of those who are out of work.

The problem therein outlined is one which is very real in every section of the country as I have good reason to know. This was accentuated by what I saw and heard on my recent trip to the Pacific Coast.

Let me answer it by laying down what I believe to be certain cardinal principles. In the first place even in an ideal community where no one is out of work, there would always be the need of welfare work conducted through the churches, through private charity and by local government—the need for clinics and hospitals and vocational training, the need for the care of the aged, for care of mental cases and for care of the crippled. Such communities where there is no unemployment are almost utopian, for even in times of prosperity there are always some unemployed—people who want to work, but can find no work.

New York System Called Model for Whole Nation.

The first principle I would lay down is that the primary duty rests on the community, through local government and private agencies, to take care of the relief of unemployment. But we then come to a situation where there are so many people out of work that local funds are insufficient. It seems clear to me that the organized society known as the State comes into the picture at this point. In other words, the obligation of government is extended to the next higher unit.

I practice what I preach. In 1930 the State of New York greatly increased its employment service and kept in close touch with the ability of localities to take care of their own unemployed. But in the summer of 1931 it became apparent to me that actual State funds and a State supervised system was imperative. I called a special session of the Legislature and they appropriated a fund of $20,000,000 for unemployment relief, this fund to be reimbursed to the State through the doubling of our income taxes. Thus the State of New York became the first among all the States to accept the definite obligation of supplemental local funds where these local funds were insufficient. The administration of this great work has become a model for the rest of the country. Without setting up any complex machinery or any large overhead, the State of New York is working successfully through local agencies, and in spite of the fact that over 1,000,000 people are out of work and in need of aid in this one State alone, we have so far met at least the bare necessities of the case. This past spring the Legislature appropriated another $5,000,000 and on November 8 the voters will pass on a $30,000,000 bond issue to tide us over this winter and at least up to next summer.

Finally, let me come to the last step in the statement of the principle. I am very certain that the obligation extends beyond the States and to the Federal Government itself if and when it becomes apparent that States and communities are unable to take care of the necessary relief work.

United States Must Aid When States Can Not.

It may interest you to have me read a short quotation from my message to the Legislature in 1931: "What is the State? It is the duly constituted representative of an organized society of human beings, created by them for their mutual protection and well being. One of the duties of the State is that of caring for those of its citizens who find themselves the victims of such adverse circumstances as make them unable to obtain even the necessities of mere existence without the aid of others. In broad terms, I assert that modern society, acting through its government, owes the definite obligation to prevent the starvation or the dire want of any of its fellow men and women who try to maintain themselves, but can not. To these unfortunate citizens aid must be extended by the government, not as a matter of charity, but as a matter of social duty."

That principle which I laid down in 1931 I reaffirm. I not only reaffirm it, I go a step further and say that where the State itself is unable successfully to fulfill this obligation which lies upon it, it then becomes the positive duty of the Federal Government to step in to help. In the words of our Democratic national platform the Federal Government has a "continuous responsibility for human welfare, especially for the protection of children." That duty and responsibility the Federal Government should carry out promptly, fearlessly and generously. It took the present Republican administration in Washington almost three years to recognize this principle. I have recounted to you in other speeches, and it is a matter of general information that for at least two years after the crash the only efforts made by the national administration to cope with the distress of unemployment were to deny its existence. When finally this year, after attempts at concealment and minimizing had failed, when they were at last forced to recognize the fact of suffering among millions of unemployed, appropriations of Federal funds for assistance to States were finally made.

Economy Imperative But Not at Expense of Aid.

I think it is fair to point out that a complete program of unemployment relief was on my recommendation actually under way in the State of New York over a year ago and that in Washington relief funds in any large volume were not provided until this summer, and at that they were pushed through at the demand of Congress rather than through the leadership of the President of the United States.

At the same time I have constantly reiterated my conviction that the expenditures of cities, States and the Federal Government must be reduced in the interest of the Nation as a whole. I believe there are many ways in which such reduction of expenditures can take place, but I am utterly unwilling that economy should be practiced at the expense of starving people. We must economize in other ways, but it shall never be said that the American people have refused to provide the necessities of life to those who, through no fault of their own, are unable to feed, clothe and house themselves. The first obligation of Government is the protection of the well-being—the very existence of its citizens.

So much for that.

The next question asks my attitude toward appropriations for public works as an aid of unemployment. I am perfectly clear as to the principles involved in this case also.

From the long range point of view it would be advisable for governments of all kinds to set up in times of prosperity what might be called a nest egg to be used for public works in times of depression. That is a policy which he should initiate when we get back to good times.

But there is the immediate possibility of helping the emergency through appropriations for public works. One question, however, must be answered first, because of the simple fact that these public works cost money. We all know that government treasuries, whether local or state or federal, are hard put to it to keep their budgets balanced, and in the case of the Federal Treasury thoroughly unsound financial policies have made its situation not exactly desperate but at least threatening to future stability if the policies of the present administration are continued. All public works—including federal—must be considered from the point of view of the ability of the government treasury to pay for them. There are two ways of paying for public works. One is by the sale of bonds. In principle such bonds should be issued only to pay for self-sustaining projects or for structures which will without question have a useful life over a long period of years. The other method of payment is from current revenues, which in these days means in most cases added taxes. And we all know that there is a very definite limit to the increase of taxes above the present level.

Self-Sustaining Works Should Be Encouraged.

From this point, therefore, I can go on and say that if funds can be properly provided by the Federal Government for increased appropriations for public works, we must examine the character of those public works. I already have spoken of that type which is self-sustaining. These should be greatly encouraged.

The other type is that of public works which are honestly essential to the community. Each case must rest on its own merits. It is impossible, for example, to say that all parks or all playgrounds are essential. One may be and another may not be.

If a school, for instance, has no playground, it is obvious that the furnishing of a playground is a necessity to the community. But if the school already has a playground and some people seek merely to enlarge it, there may be a very definite question as to how necessary that enlargement is. Let me cite another example. I am much interested in providing better housing accommodations for the poor in our great cities. If a slum area can be torn down and new modern buildings put up, I should call that almost a human necessity, but, on the other hand, the mere erection of new buildings in some other part of the city while allowing the slums to remain raises at once a question of necessity. I am confident that the Federal Government, working in cooperation with States and cities, can do much to carry on increased public works and along lines which are sound from the economic and financial point of view.

Now I come to another question. I am asked whether I favor a system of unemployment insurance reserves made compulsory by the States, supplemented by a system of federally coordinated State employment offices to facilitate the reemployment of jobless workers.

Urges No Curtailment Of Children's Bureau.

The first part of the question is directly answered by the Democratic platform which advocates unemployment insurance under State laws. This is no new policy for me. I have advocated unemployment insurance in my own State for some time, and indeed last year six Eastern governors were my guests at a conference which resulted in the drawing up of what might be called an ideal plan of unemployment insurance.

This type of insurance is not a cure-all, but it provides at least a cushion to mitigate unemployment in times of depression. It is sound if after starting it we stick to the principle of sound insurance financing. It is only where governments as in some European countries have failed to live up to these sound principles that unemployment insurance has been an economic failure.

As to the coordinate employment offices, I can only tell you that I was for the bills sponsored by Senator Wagner of my own State and passed by the Congress. They created a nationally coordinated system of employment offices operated by the individual States with the advisory cooperation of joint boards of employers and employes. To my very great regret this measure was vetoed by the President of the United States. I am certain that the Federal Government can, by furnishing leadership, stimulate the various States to set up and coordinate practical, useful systems.

These first three questions which I have discussed relate to the relief of those who are unemployed, and it is perhaps logical that the next two questions should relate to children, because we know that unemployment works a great hardship on the young people of the coming generation. I certainly favor the continuance of the fine work which has been done by the Children's Bureau in Washington, but at the same time we must not forget that the Federal Government through several other agencies is constantly working for the welfare of children. Attempts have been made to cut the appropriations for child welfare work. It seems to me that this is the last place in which we should seek to economize. I can not agree with the member of President Hoover's Cabinet who suggests that this depression is not altogether a bad thing for our children. You and I know the appalling fact that malnutrition is one of the saddest by-products of unemployment. The health of these children is being affected not only now, but for all the rest of their lives.

Vocational Education Should Be Increased.

Furthermore, a depression takes thousands of children away from schools and puts them to work to help the family income. They are underpaid and only too often work under conditions which physically and morally are often dangerous. It is well to remember too that the use of these untrained children in industry keeps many adults out of employment and has the effect of cutting down wages below a decent living standard.

These are only a few of the many reasons why the Federal Government must continue to act as an agency to disseminate information about child welfare and to encourage States and local governments to raise their standards to the highest possible level.

The last question relates to keeping children in school to the age of 16. I am in favor of that. Furtherfore, I go along with the thought that we must increase vocational education for those children who otherwise would not receive adequate training. That kind of vocational training will raise the standards of worth-while employment not only now but also in normal times.

My own observation leads me to believe that in many parts of the country we have tended to an educational system devised too greatly for academic training and professional careers. We know that already many of the professions are oversupplied and it is a fair guess that during the coming generation we shall devote more attention to educating our boys and girls for vocational pursuits which are just as honorable, just as respectable, and in many instances just as remunerative as are the professions themselves. The Federal Government, without in any way taking away the right and the duty of the several States to manage their own educational affairs, can act as a clearing house of information and as an incentive to higher standards.

Public Health Work Enlargement Proposed.

But the Federal Government has had no continuing policy for dealing with problems of public health and social welfare. In this as in other activities a multiplicity of unrelated agencies have been developed hit or miss to deal with aspects of the same problem. The result has been waste of men and money; more costly and less efficient service than we should have.

The administration has done nothing to reorganize this or other branches of the Federal Government, in spite of campaign promises at the last three presidential elections. I propose to inaugurate a definite long range plan for dealing with all phases of public health and welfare, which are a proper concern of the Federal Government. May I add that in the State of New York during the past four years we have accomplished definite and practical results by coordinating and planning the work of the State. I cite as a simple example the public health program which is a part of my administration. It has been referred to in other States as the most important contribution to practical public health work during this generation. And all of this we have taken out of politics.

The same principles can and should be applied to the health and welfare work of the Federal Government.

"Actual Love of Neighbor" Urged on All in Country.

In closing, will you let me make an appeal to the entire country—an appeal with all my heart, with all my mind and with all my soul—to let nothing interfere with the duty and obligation of coming forward as individuals and as groups to the support of the unemployed and the support of their dependents during the coming winter?

By proclamation I can make official appeal to the State of which I am governor, but I think that I have the right as a presidential candidate to make an unofficial appeal to my fellow Americans in every other State. I wish that every man, woman and child above the age of reason in the whole country would make the coming Thanksgiving Day and the coming Christmas Day occasions to contribute with money or food or clothing or all three, to the direct relief of local needs.

Let us remember that in addition to whatever it may be possible for the Federal Government or State government or municipalities to do in relieving the tremendous and increasing burden of relief work, suffering, misery and distress will still be great unless individuals, unless societies and churches, practice actual charity—actual love of their neighbor—to an extent even greater than at any time in the past.

Let us who have jobs or money or shelter for ourselves and our own families share with the less fortunate. Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day of 1932 will take on an added significance—the significance of a higher American ideal of social justice.

New Development In Steel Reported

Finding Permits Ordinary Metal to Be Armor-Clad With Stainless.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Harry E. Sheldon, president of the Allegheny Steel Co., today announced a new metallurgical development which he said would permit ordinary carbon steel to be armor-clad with stainless steel.

The new material will vastly expand the applicability of corrosion-resisting metals, Mr. Sheldon said, may make possible immediate progress in the all-metal prefabricated house and is expected to increase both exterior and interior use of metal in large building construction.

"The new process differs from previous attempts at putting a layer of corrosion-resisting alloy on plain steel in that by the new method the chromium nickel steel and the plain carbon steel are combined in the ingot," said the announcement. "The result is a solid sheet or plate composed of 18 per cent chromium and 8 per cent nickel alloy, commonly known as Allegheny metal, for a fifth of the total thickness, the remainder being ordinary mild steel."

Hoover Talks on Relief Next Sunday Over Radio

President Hoover will be principal speaker at 6:30 o'clock Sunday night over a Nation-wide radio hookup in the first of a series of broadcasts, focusing attention on the local campaigns for support of unemployment relief, hospitalization, nursing, orphanages, care of youth, the aged and the infirm.

The programs, being broadcast over the red network of the National Broadcasting Co. and the network of the Columbia Broadcasting System, are radio's contribution to the Welfare and Relief Mobilization of 1932, the national organization of which Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, is chairman.

ALLEN WILL SPEAK WITH GOV. RITCHIE

Substituted for Wilbur in Plans for Joint Address at Northwestern.

(Associated Press.)

Silas Strawn, of Chicago, said last night that arrangements had been made for Albert C. Ritchie, Democratic Governor of Maryland, and Henry J. Allen, former Republican senator from Kansas, to speak on the issues of the political campaign on Monday night at Northwestern University.

Mr. Strawn said, in response to a newspaperman's question, that Allen, publicity director of the Republican national committee, had been substituted for Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur, who found himself unable to appear because the engagement would not fit into his present speaking itinerary.

The Chicago lawyer, here for the bar association convention, described as "erroneous" reports that the meeting of Democratic and Republican speakers was scheduled as a debate.

Baltimore, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Commenting on the substituting of Republican speakers to oppose him next Monday night at Northwestern University, Gov. Ritchie tonight said, "So far as I am concerned, it is all quite the same."

"Melvin A. Traylor, through whom I had been invited to speak with Secretary Wilbur," Gov. Ritchie said, "told me that he had been authoritatively informed that President Hoover would not permit Secretary Wilbur to speak at the meeting with me unless the President was assured I would not, in my speech, engage in any criticisms of him, but would confine myself to other subjects. * * *

"I told Mr. Traylor that, distasteful as it was to me not to comply with any request made by the President of the United States, I could not comply with this one, because I did not know how to present the Democratic side of the campaign without stating, in a respectful manner and within the limits of good taste, those criticisms which I believe President Hoover's record not only justify but unquestionably call for. * * *"

Curtis Says Hoover Is Aiding Farmers

Says President Is Opposed to Foreclosures in Speech at Boise, Idaho.

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Vice President Charles Curtis told a crowd gathered at the railroad station here today the "program of President Hoover is opposed to the foreclosure of mortgages on small property, or farms."

He reviewed President Hoover's reconstruction program and said Senator Borah, of Idaho, the "strongest senator," was in accord with the President's views opposing foreclosures of mortgages on small property.

The Vice President said the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was not for the wealthy, as opposing party members had charged, but "86 per cent of its loans" had been made to institutions in cities of 25,000 people or less.

Tunney and Booth Set For Political Battle

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—It's going to be Gene Tunney against Albie Booth on Connecticut's political platforms this month. Democratic State headquarters announced today that Tunney, retired world's heavyweight boxing champion, will reach New York from Paris tomorrow, and will campaign for the party's ticket.

Booth, former Yale football star, already has gone on the stump for Republican candidates, following a meeting early in the week with President Hoover at the White House. He is being booked for talks throughout the State.

SMITH TENTATIVELY PLANS 6 ADDRESSES

Garner Will Speak Tonight in Reply to Hoover's Thrusts at Congress.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith promised the Democratic campaign six tentative speeches today while Speaker John N. Garner took the task of replying to President Hoover and Calvin Coolidge in a Nation-wide radio address tomorrow night.

The vice presidential nominee said his address would deal "in a general way" with criticisms of Democratic congressional leadership and legislation made by the President and his predecessor.

The itinerary of former Gov. Smith, made tentative because of a severe throat ailment, will take him after an address in Tammany Hall October 19 to Newark, N. J.; Providence, R. I.; Boston, either Albany or Troy and Buffalo.

Garner's First Big Speech.

The Speaker's address will be about 45 minutes in length and will go on the air at 10:15 p. m., Eastern standard time, over a coast-to-coast N. B. C. network. It will be broadcast from New York.

Speaker Garner's radio address is considered by Democratic leaders as his first major sally of the campaign. Within the next few days, an announcement is expected of his further engagements.

The 1928 Democratic presidential candidate's ailment, an inflamed trachea, caused him to send regrets today for a luncheon in honor of Herbert Lehman, his close friend and Democratic candidate for governor. Unexpectedly, he put in a belated appearance, touching on the dramatic.

Smith's Tentative Dates.

The original Smith schedule was: October 19, Tammany Hall; October 24, Newark; October 27, Providence and Boston; October 28, either Albany or Troy; October 29, Buffalo.

"Will he talk for the State and national tickets?" the former governor's representative was asked.

"That's the idea," was the reply.

The Smith announcement was welcomed at the Democratic national headquarters. This was his first pronouncement on the campaign since his handclasping reconciliation with Gov. Roosevelt at the State convention in Albany ten days ago.

The closing address of the tentative schedule, in Buffalo, is the wind-up of the up-State campaign. The national committee still expects the former governor to join Roosevelt on the speaking program at the closing rally in Madison Square Garden, on the Saturday night before election.

Hoover Is Called One of Greatest

Country Fortunate in Having Such a Man, Says Secretary Wilbur.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur in a University of Michigan union open forum address today described President Hoover as "one of the greatest Americans of all time."

"The country," he said, is "fortunate in having a man trained in an unusual school to guide us through the depression."

"You people here don't know you're up to your ears in the worst danger the world ever faced," he continued. "You think you are immune, but other governments have fallen, in Europe and South America."

"Who gassed the babies in Washington?" some one in the audience asked.

"No one did," Dr. Wilbur replied. "None were gassed. That was one of those total and complete falsehoods spread over the country by people trying to dodge the facts of things."

Man Hurt as Car Overturns.

William V. Dawson, of Germantown, Md., narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when his automobile skidded on the slippery surface of the Frederick road near Gaithersburg, Md., and overturned in a ditch. He was cut on the face and hands but was not seriously injured although the entire top of his car was crushed into kindling by the impact.

Alice Longworth Answers Roosevelt Kinship Rumors

Says Same Surname Is All She Has in Common With Democratic Cousin; Will Vote for Hoover Because "He Deserves Support."

New York, Oct. 13 (U.P.).—"Politically his branch of the family and ours have always been in different camps and the same surname is about all we have in common."

Thus Alice Roosevelt Longworth, writing under the title of "Some Reminiscences" in the current issue of the Ladies Home Journal, sets at rest "a reverberation which has an echo in the nomination of Franklin Delano Roosevelt in 1932" for the Presidency of the United States.

"Many persons," the daughter of the "Rough Rider" President writes, "politicians and nonpoliticians as well, mutter darkly that there is a misapprehension in the country as to just what relation Franklin is to T. R., and as people have actually congratulated me on the nomination of 'your brother,' perhaps there is some confusion, and it is only fair that it should be cleared away.

"He is my father's fourth cousin once removed and my fifth. * * * I can not believe that the voter has any illusion as to the degree of our kinship.

"I am a Republican, with a progressive tradition and inclination, and I am going to vote for Hoover.

"But if I were not a Republican I would still vote for Mr. Hoover this time. I say this of course without the least personal feeling against my fifth cousin. But I think that Mr. Hoover deserves to be elected and deserves the support of the people."

Mention of the Roosevelt family relationships was but one passing phase of the "Reminiscences" published today, a lively recounting of the memories of the 48-year-old woman who, daughter of a President and wife of the late Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House, is known throughout the world of politics and diplomacy as "Lady Alice." The story, revealing that Alice was the child of a first marriage of Theodore Roosevelt, is replete with childhood memories of "Teddy" as police commissioner of New York, the return of the Rough Riders from the Spanish-American War, life at Oyster Bay.

With ready wit Mrs. Longworth laughs at the "curious and absurd legend" that "I am a power in politics," denies the existence of a "social lobby" in Washington as "ridiculous." She holds that "there can be no legitimate opposition" to the "real lobbies" in Washington, but admits that "the type of lobby such as oil, copper, lumber, sugar, farm-labor, veterans and a host of others * * * is there to logroll, to intimidate * * * is a threat to the welfare of the many."

Her father's election to the Vice Presidency, which led to his assumption of the Presidency on the assassination of McKinley, she describes as a "shelving" by politicians in "an office which had about it then, as now, an atmosphere of comic obscurity." William Jennings Bryan she recalls as "no more than a bulky, amorphous, frock-coated, long-haired figure in a political cartoon." She draws a parallel between the American system of electing a President and that described in Frazier's "The Golden Bough."

"The story of the king of the wood at Nemi is what we continue to enact," she writes. "At Nemi the king was king for one year, at the end of which time a man was selected to go up into the holy grove and kill him—if he were able to. The survivor was king for the year following, when the act was put on again.

"In a measure we approximate the same symptoms and symbols, for when one hears the criticism that Hoover is responsible for bad times it has just about as much basis in reality as had the beliefs of our far-off ancestors—if the crops were abundant and the hunting good, the king was a big magician; but if they were not, his was the fault. I don't doubt that the warriors and witch doctors of the ins and outs battled and howled as our campaign orators do today."

MILLS OPENS DRIVE FOR CHICAGO'S VOTE

Charges Roosevelt Has Not Offered Plan to Cure Depression.

Chicago, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills tonight opened the Republican drive for Chicago's 1,500,000 votes with a speech charging Franklin D. Roosevelt had "maintained complete silence regarding what methods he would use to cure the depression."

Mills' speech was delivered in the Chicago Coliseum, scene of several political conventions.

"The only real issue of the campaign is economic recovery," Mills said. "It is the most vivid, the most complete, the most living reality of American life.

"And the Democratic candidate in three months of campaigning over 3,000 miles of territory has refused to face it; refused to tell the people what, if any, plans he has made to deal with it.

"He has discussed vaguely what he would like to do after the depression is over; he has talked vaguely of the causes of the depression; but as to how it is to be overcome, he is completely silent."

President Hoover, Mills said, was entitled "by every rule of the game" to finish the program of reconstruction already under way. The Secretary declared Roosevelt was incapable because of inexperience of taking over Hoover's job.

"He would have to master almost in a few days all that Herbert Hoover has learned through as bitter and as hard experience as any man could face for three long years," he continued.

Smoot Hits Democrats For Sugar Tariff Plan

Ogden, Utah, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Senator Reed Smoot (Republican), Utah, campaigning for reelection, told an audience here today that not a single sugar factory would be operating in the United States if the Democratic tariff plan, as approved by Gov. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential nominee, were placed in operation.

He read two letters which he said appeared in the Havana Post in which Cuban interests attacked the 2-cent tariff on sugar and declared Gov. Roosevelt was in favor of lowering the present duty.

Tomorrow morning at 11 he will lead the annual Boy Scout pilgrimage when this year's crop of walnuts will be presented to him. He in turn will present the seeds to the council in charge of the nation wide nut tree planting program for national distribution. In the afternoon, at 2:30, he will dedicate the National Historic Grove in Anacostia, when walnut trees from six American shrines will be planted.

He was one of the leaders in the movement to gather seeds on historic grounds in order that living memorials might be planted in honor of America's heroes and history. This program is now fostered by Boy Scouts of America, the American Forestry Association, the American Walnut Manufacturers' Association, and the Department of Agriculture.

Suicide, Murder Verdict in Deaths

Autopsies Performed on Bodies of Policeman and Chinese Girl.

After performing autopsies on the bodies of Private Lewis Hale, 31, and Mrs. Mildred Wen King, 26, Dr. Christopher Murphy, deputy coroner, announced last night certificates of suicide and murder, respectively, would be issued.

Dr. Murphy branded as absolutely unfounded a theory, said to have been expressed by a doctor who attended the fatally wounded pair after the taxicab in which they were riding crashed into a light pole in the Smithsonian Grounds, that the bullet which killed Hale could not have been self-inflicted.

Detectives investigating were unable to determine what motivated Hale.

A veteran of the World War, Hale will be buried in Arlington Cemetery tomorrow, following a funeral at the William H. Sardo & Co. Funeral Chapel, 421 H street northwest. Funeral arrangement had not been made for the woman.

CORNER STONE LAID AT SUPREME COURT

President and Chief Justice Head Erudite Assembly at New Edifice.

The corner stone of the new Supreme Court Building was fixed in place yesterday in the presence of President Hoover, the justices of the Supreme Court and distinguished attorneys from this country and abroad.

More than 5,000 spectators heard Chief Justice Hughes declare that "this edifice * * * attests confidence. It suggests permanence—not the permanence of stone and steel, but of an idea; not, in this respect, of particular formulas, but of a conception of the basic needs of our organized society."

Mortar was laid in the niche where the stone was placed, by President Hoover, Chief Justice Hughes and Guy A. Thompson, president of the American Bar Association. The workmen then slipped the stone into its place. It bears only the inscription "A. D. 1932."

In the distinguished group were the justices of the Supreme Court, members of the Cabinet and the Diplomatic Corps. Mrs. Hoover and Henry M. Robinson, of California, accompanied the President.

Speaking on behalf of the bar, John W. Davis said the Supreme Court has marched step by step with the Union, and it has been unsullied "by breath of scandal," and so long as it continues "with courage and fidelity upon its appointed path, so long—and no longer—will the republic of the founders endure."

Mrs. William Howard Taft, the widow of the former President and Chief Justice, placed the lead box which was sealed in the corner stone and which contained, among other deposits, a ceramic picture of Mr. Taft.

After telling of the wanderings of the Supreme Court from the time of its inception, Chief Justice Hughes said the chamber now occupied would be left with "keen regret."

"It will be a long time, indeed," he said, "before this beautiful building can boast of the spiritual endowment which has blessed the old home.

"For the enterprise now progressing to completion in worthily meeting these needs we are indebted to the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft more than to any one else."

"House of Refuge."

The day of interpretation of the Constitution is not over, said Mr. Davis. "And in the future, no less than in the past, there will rise again and yet again the challenging question whether old words have taken on new meaning in the light of changing facts, or whether new facts must find their proper setting in the frame of ancient words." Here, he said, will be the "house of refuge for all such as are oppressed."

Mr. Davis traced the history of the court since the opening session in New York, then to the sessions at Philadelphia and then to Washington, where for one period of 40 years, Marshall, Taney and their colleagues occupied a "remote corner of the Capitol."

The structure was described by Mr. Thompson as a "memorial to bloodless battles * * * yet battles on whose issues hung our liberties, the integrity of our Federal union, its harmony and balance, and our social and economic destiny."

Justice Brandeis Absent.

Mr. Thompson and Mr. Davis greeted the arriving guests, only Justice Brandeis of the Supreme Court was not present. Other distinguished guests were the Marquess of Reading, Paul Reynaud, of France, and Newton R. Powell, president of the Canadian Bar Association, and Frank B. Kellogg, former Secretary of State.

The structure, when completed, will cost approximately $10,000,000. The building is being erected on a 7-acre site just north of the Library of Congress. The Supreme Court room on the main floor will have 60 per cent more space than the present chamber. On the other floors will be rooms for the justices, court officials and document rooms.

The building, planned by Cass Gilbert, will be Corinthian in design. It will probably be completed in time for the 1934 term of the court.

LOOT OF $1,250,000 IS BELIEVED FOUND

Four Arrested in Vast Ring Disposing of Stolen Securities.

Cleveland, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Four men were held tonight in an investigation of suspected attempts to dispose of $1,250,000 in bonds and stocks, the loot from robberies of banks and financial institutions in a half a dozen cities.

First degree larceny warrants were sworn out in Buffalo today for two of the men, Michael Verga, of Detroit, and Louis Epstein, of Cleveland, who were suspected by private detectives and Cleveland police of attempting to dispose of $32,000 worth of the securities.

Two more men, one a resident of Cleveland and the other a North East, Pa., business man, also were being held.

Warrants Issued.

The warrants against Verga and Epstein were sworn out by Edward M. Miller, vice president of the M. & T. Trust Co., Buffalo, which was robbed last September 23. Investigators said some of the securities found after the arrest of Verga and Epstein were stolen from the Buffalo institution.

The investigators said it would be several days before all of the securities are traced.

Deputy Detective Inspector Joseph Sweeney said Verga may have been connected with a national ring disposing of stolen stocks and bonds. He said Verga, traced here yesterday from New York via Columbus, Cincinnati and other cities, apparently operated by trading stolen securities for those of bona fide title.

Verga Denies Guilt.

The $32,000 worth of securities, Sweeney and other detectives said, were found in the possession of Epstein after he and Verga met here. Sweeney said the second Clevelander admitted knowing Epstein and had been approached by the latter regarding purchase of the securities. Verga denied bringing the bonds here.

No charges have been placed against the quartet by Cleveland police.

has traveled the highways plundering and assaulting innocent citizens. Only meager descriptions of the gang have been obtained, and police are bewildered as to the identity of the men.

State's Attorney John H. T. Briscoe said tonight that the latest outbreak differed from the others in that it was "a clever job." The intruders left no clew as to how they gained entrance.

"We have plenty of men working on the case," he said, "and I believe something will break soon."

Three crime experts, headed by Lieut. R. M. Ridgley, of the Maryland State police, have been called to aid the sheriff's office. The others are Lieuts. J. A. Manning and Charles Hudack, of the Baltimore police.

St. Marys County, one of the oldest and most peaceful sections in Maryland, is up in arms and its citizens are determined to put an end to the depredations.

JUDGE PETER PLANS TO QUIT BENCH SOON

Will Take Rest, He Declares; Announcement Comes as Surprise.

Announcement that he will resign as soon as he has disposed of matters submitted to him was made yesterday by Judge Robert B. Peter, judge of the Montgomery County Circuit Court and of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Maryland. The announcement was a surprise to the members of the local bar and to county officials.

Judge Peter announced: "The work here has increased to such an extent that I have not had time for necessary rest, and as there is so much work constantly to be done it would be unfair to the residents of this county for me to take the rest I now really need.

"I intend to rest for a few months and then resume the practice of law in Rockville, associated with my son, Robert B. Peter, jr."

Members of the bar for the county have pointed out for some time that the large increase in judicial work of the county circuit court, which has resulted from the rapid growth of Montgomery County from a rural community to a semimetropolitan center necessitates the appointment of two judges for the county. It is possible that such a measure will be urged before the next session of the Maryland Assembly in January.

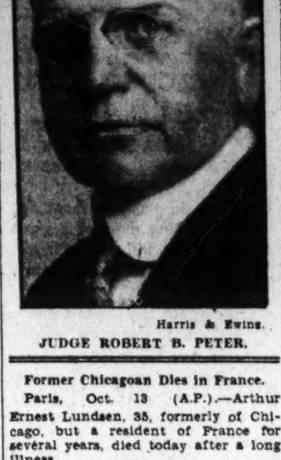
Judge Petgr was appointed judge of the court September 1, 1923, by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to succeed his brother, the late Judge Edward C. Peter. He served until the November election of that year, when he was elected for the full term of fifteen years, and since that time he has been a diligent laborer at the courthouse.

He served as State's attorney for the county from 1904 to 1907. At that time he carried on a diligent and successful campaign against the lawlessness which had become rooted along the Conduit road.

His son, Robert B. Peter, jr., was State's attorney while his father sat on the bench and the judge's absolute fairness even under such unusual circumstances was well known and lauded by the county bar and laity.

Judge Peter's successor will be appointed by Gov. Ritchie to serve until the State and county elections of 1934, when a judge for the fifteen-year term will be elected. Judge Peter yesterday conferred with Gov. Ritchie at Annapolis regarding his resignation.

TO RESIGN SOON



Harris & Ewins.

JUDGE ROBERT B. PETER.

Moro Band Routed From Village Fort

One Constabularyman and Six Bandits Killed in New Encounter.

Jolo, P. I., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—In fierce fighting today the highly trained Philippine constabulary routed warlike Moro outlaws from their fortified village of Tayungan. One constabularyman and six Moros were known to have been killed.

After three days of fruitless negotiation to obtain surrender of the outlaw leaders, 60 constabularymen attacked the entrenched Sulus at 7 o'clock this morning. Hand grenades, rifles and bolos figured in the fighting, which lasted until 3 p. m.

The natives fled their village, in which 400 warriors, women and children had taken refuge, shortly after the constabulary attacked. The Moros scattered, but continued sniping for hours. Another battle is expected tomorrow.

Fugitive 34 Years, Man Surrenders in Robbery

Convicted in Arkansas Postoffice Theft, He Escaped and Built Up Small Fortune; Conscience Causes Him to Return to Leavenworth to Serve Term

Leavenworth, Kans., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—A fugitive from justice for 34 years, during which he built up a modest fortune and once served as a deputy sheriff in California, W. Kirby Robinson, 65, has surrendered and expressed willingness to serve his four-year sentence to Leavenworth Penitentiary for an Arkansas postoffice robbery.

"It's been haunting me," said Robinson, gray-haired now and the father of a family in California. "I want to clear the record. Then I can go back to California with a clear conscience."

Robinson appeared before Warden Zerbst at the Federal prison and told his story. He was denied immediate admittance because there were no commitment papers for him. He then placed himself in custody of Leavenworth police, awaiting action by Federal authorities.

The case was referred to Attorney General Mitchell at Washington. Department of Justice agents at Kansas City expressed the belief that the commitment papers would be issued in the regular manner.

When the elderly fugitive faced Zerbst and said he was giving himself up, the warden did not know what to do. Thirty-four years ago—why, the Oklahoma that Robinson talked about having escaped from was Indian Territory then. Nor were there fingerprint records in those days. Probably no one could identify this gray-haired man as being an alleged postoffice robber when 31 years old.

But the Government doesn't forget escaped prisoners, even after more than three decades. The yellowed Department of Justice records at Kansas City showed that W. K. Robinson escaped from a train bearing him to prison on a four-year sentence imposed at Fort Smith, Ark., for robbing a postoffice near Little Rock. North of Bartlesville, Okla., then in the Indian Territory, Robinson worked himself free of shackles and plunged through an open window to freedom.

Prussian Literature Raids On.

Berlin, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—By order of the state attorney police searched communist centers and printing shops throughout Prussia today for illicit literature. The raids began early in the morning and continued until noon. It probably will take several days to examine the piles of books and other materials to determine whether their contents are incriminatory.

Boni de Castellane Ill; Doctors Doubt Recovery

Paris Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The Marquis Boni de Castellane, former husband of Anna Gould and sometimes called "King of the Boulevardiers," was desperately ill today and the doctors were uncertain whether he would live.

A paralytic stroke, the third he has had, coupled with an attack of bronchitis, threatened his life. He has been ill for several years, but until recently he always was able to get about, still a conspicuous figure at 64. It was in 1895 that he was married to Anna Gould, the American heiress, and a little more than ten years later thatthey were divorced.

World's Largest Service Station

TODAY, in its new, six-story building on Constitution Avenue (B Street) 2nd to 3rd Streets, N. W., the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey opens the largest, most complete automobile servicing plant in the world—the "Standard" Capitol Servicenter.

You are cordially invited to inspect it. Here, briefly, is what you will find . . .

Three floors—75,000 square feet, entirely under cover—where you can get practically every type of service and accessory necessary to the operation and maintenance of an automobile.

You will see equipment which exists nowhere else. You will find apparatus of such advanced design that it completely revolutionizes many phases of motor car servicing.

In addition, the "Standard" Capitol Servicenter is so equipped, staffed and organized that work of exceptional quality can be turned out "while you watch." The services offered, as well as the products, are the best obtainable. By taking advantage of these unusual facilities, you will get increased pleasure in driving a perfectly tuned car. And economy of operation will follow.

A visit to the "Standard" Capitol Servicenter will repay you, for the photographs shown here illustrate only a few of the many services offered. See for yourself what "Standard" is doing to make its service to you more than ever—the finest!

80 FEET LONG..."Standard" Lubrication Service, verified point by point, according to the Manufacturers' Recommendations—assures you of a perfect job in 8 to 15 minutes on this moving track.

THOSE GIANT BRUSHES you see above and below the car are only two of the special features which make this the world's finest car-washing department. Compressed air dries your car.

"SEES" THROUGH METAL....This electric ignition testing machine is one of the few in use. A couple of minutes (not hours or days) and it discovers the trouble in any major ignition unit.

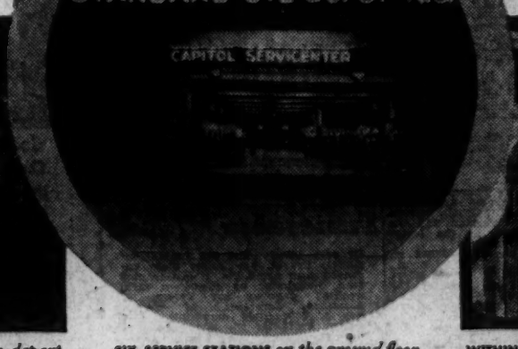
MINIATURE RUBBER FACTORY...Scene in vulcanizing department, which is so completely equipped that some of its apparatus, such as steam curing, is seldom found outside of rubber factories.



SIX SERVICE STATIONS on the ground floor—where ESSO, "Standard" Gasoline, Essolube, "the Esso of motor oils," and other "Standard" products are sold.

WITHIN THE LAW...This new headlight tester not only makes night driving safer, but also assures you of lights which are focused in accordance with the regulations. Complete battery service, too, is offered.

GUARDS TAKE STAND IN SWEAT-BOX TRIAL

Gave Youth Fatherly Advice, One Tells Jury as Mother of Convict Weeps.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Two former prison guards today testified they did not kill Arthur Maillefert, young New Jersey prisoner who died in a Sunbeam Camp sweat box, and one wiped tears from his eyes as he concluded a story of fatherly advice given an unruly boy.

George W. Courson, licking his lips as he lowered his 285 pounds into the witness chair, denied the prosecution tales of brutal treatment that preceded Maillefert's death at the end of a chain attached to rafters in the sweat box last June 3, and tears came as he told how he asked the youth if there was anything he wanted and how he would have shared his own food with him if it had been asked.

Solomon Higginbotham denied emphatically that he killed Maillefert or made any attempt to do so.

The defense rested after Higginbotham testified, and both sides prepared for rebuttal testimony tomorrow. Court attaches expressed the opinion the case would reach the jury Saturday.

Mrs. Julia Maillefert, of Westfield, N. J., mother of the dead boy, wept throughout the testimony of Courson. Her son, William, left the courtroom as the former guard prepared to take the stand.

Fatherly Advice.

Courson said he gave Maillefert fatherly advice instead of the brutal treatment charged by the State, pleaded with him "to do better" instead of administering the beatings to which State witnesses testified, asked him to stop causing trouble instead of making threats and labored over his body in resuscitation efforts when Maillefert was taken from the box in which State witnesses had said he promised to keep the boy "until Christmas—if he ain't dead."

His reward from the prisoner for his kindly efforts, and the answer to his pleas, Courson said, was an attitude of surly unruliness or of shrill defiance, with Maillefert taunting him for being "yellow" in not killing him, and declaring that if he couldn't go home he would "go to hell then."

Escaped Convicts Captured.

Decatur, Ga., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Two Florida convicts, who escaped from jail in Jacksonville, Fla., where they were being held as witnesses in the torture murder trial of two former prison guards, waited here today for officers who will take them back to what they called "a hell-hole on earth."

The men were captured last night as they attempted to steal an automobile to continue their flight. Decatur is a borough of Greater Atlanta.

James Wofford, 20, who still has fifteen years to serve for a robbery, described their escape from the Jacksonville jail, in which he said they were aided by a man who identified himself as a minister. He said the man gave them eight steel saws, telling them he wanted them to "get out of that hell-hole."

up his passport, which action would prevent his entering any other country from Greece, until he had consulted his attorneys.

The government of Greece, meanwhile, ordered an investigation of Insull's being arrested by Athens police, claiming he had been detained without authority.

Barrie, Ontario, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Martin J. Insull, brother of Samuel Insull, or his counsel must appear tomorrow before Judge Dudley Holmes for a hearing opening the fight to extradite him to Chicago to face a grand larceny and embezzlement indictment.

Judge Holmes has power to proceed immediately with the extradition proceedings or to delay the case. Legal authorities predicted that delay would result in order that attorneys on both sides might have opportunity to prepare their arguments.

London, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The formal opening of the Insull memorial wing of the National Temperance Hospital in Hampstead Road by Princess Louise, the Duchess of Argyll, which had been set for October 27, was canceled today.

Lord Reading Sees Return Of Confidence in Nation

Former British Ambassador Here and Delegate to Bar Association Convention Says Depression Evidences Are More Obvious in Great Britain.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

Lord Reading, former British Ambassador here, one-time Viceroy to India and Lord Chief Justice of England, returned to the United States to find a change in the popular psychology which indicates an imminent return to general confidence. Evidences of the world-wide depression are more obvious in Great Britain than in the United States, he finds.

The distinguished British jurisconsult is the delegate of the British bench to the American Bar Association meeting in its annual convention here this week. The septuagenarian jurist, statesman and diplomat in his suite at the Hotel Mayflower yesterday chatted pleasantly of world affairs and the general beauty of Washington.

"The city has changed since I was here fourteen years ago," he said, "but it has only gotten more beautiful."

Familiar dispatch boxes of red morocco littered the room, all inscribed with the gilt legend "H. M. The Viceroy," reminiscent of the days when Lord Reading was representative of the king in India. The former Lord Chief Justice was dressed in the quiet elegance of a corporation lawyer or an international banker; his voice was modulated and he spoke calmly with great deliberation between sentences.

Return to Confidence.

"I don't think there are more evidences of depression in the United States than in Great Britain. There has been a change in the general psychology and a return to confidence is evident."

The British jurisconsult continued: "We have been worse off than you. We had to go off the gold standard, but the British people remained calm under difficult conditions and set to work to remedy the situation as well and as quickly as possible. Besides, we were fortunate in our time of crisis in forming a government of national concentration, bringing the united wisdom of parties together, and much has been achieved since their return to power."

The greatest hope for successful outcome of the discussions in Geneva and at London for disarmament and general economic improvement lie in close Anglo-American cooperation, he believes.

"We can bring pressure to bear if we hold the same opinions and proceed in the same directive policies. It is my profound conviction that the fate of the world, especially in the immediate future, will largely depend upon the cooperation of these countries for peace."

Views on India.

On account of the eminent role which Lord Reading played in the round table conference in London, his views on the Indian question were of particular importance. He declared:

"The East also has its problems, into which I need not enter in detail. We have had ours for a long period, and still have it in our relations with India. As for Mr. Gandhi, when I was viceroy and since, I have had relations with him. Nowadays he speaks for the Indian Congress. However, I believe his fast was more a demonstration against the orthodox Hindu attitude toward the untouchables or depressed classes than against the British government."

Lord Reading saw great hope for the solution of the Far East problem in the Lytton report.

"I think it is a very fine document. It shows a calm, careful judicial survey of the whole situation, but it will have to be discussed with both China and Japan and their views obtained before conclusions can be reached by the League of Nations. Lord Lytton has done a great work under trying and difficult conditions—I mean Lord Lytton and his associates."

The new tariff arrangements between Canada and Great Britain were skirted by the British statesman when he declared:

"It is difficult to say whether the Ottawa agreements will prove as beneficial to Great Britain as has been expected. All that I can say is that so far as I can judge the dominions are satisfied with what has been accomplished."

Lord Reading will go to Canada at the end of this week to be the guest of the governor general and will hold some talks there with the prime minister, Richard Bruce Bennett.

THREE ARE KIDNAPED IN $46,000 ROBBERY

Bank Bandits, With Machine Guns, Use Girls to Shield Escape in Nebraska.

Grand Island, Nebr., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Robbers armed with machine guns, who took $46,000 from the Nebraska National Bank here and carried off three girl employes to screen their retreat, were reported tonight to have passed through Belleville, Kans.

Sheriff Dan Sanders said Kansas authorities reported the car, from which the girls had been released, passed through Belleville, near the Nebraska border, at about 5 p. m.

Previously Stover Deats, a Grand Island airplane pilot, reported he had sighted the car from the air in a grove near Edgar, Nebr.

The three girls who were forced at gun point to stand on the running-board of the robbers' car as they raced down an alley away from the bank were released unharmed three blocks away. They were Frieda Schierkolk, Marie Klever and Viona Jorgensen. Two other girls were released by the gunmen before they left the alley.

Two gunmen stood guard outside the bank while four others entered and scattered to various points in the room. They ordered the employes and twenty customers to lie on the floor and threatened to kill if their orders were not carried out.

Cashier V. H. Meves and another employe were ordered to open the vault. As it was guarded by a time lock, they were unable to do so. All cash outside the vault, amounting to $38,000, and $8,000 in bonds, was obtained by the robbers.

BAR WANTS REFORM OF INCOME TAX LAW

taxes improperly collected from 6 to 4 per cent. It was adopted unanimously.

Mitchell's Recommendation.

Attorney General Mitchell, addressing the association, urged enactment of a bill giving the Supreme Court power to make rules of procedure in criminal cases. He said the measure might lead to "sweeping reforms in the interests of speeding the final disposition of criminal cases."

He charged the courts are too ready in "recognizing stipulations involving delays," offering figures to show Federal criminal cases are on the increase. He declared it "an affront to decent citizens" for convicted persons to go at large, pending appeal, for periods ranging from one to three years.

The Attorney General told the association that "if the Nation ever has cause to lose confidence in the integrity of the machinery of justice, our institutions will be overturned." He paid tribute to "that unwavering support which President Hoover has extended to me." The President, he said, however, has been inclined to disagree with the Department of Justice in matters of pardons, regarding the department as "too rigid."

President Aids Humble.

"President Hoover, with a human sympathy born of his great experiences, in the relief of human misery, has now and again, not for great malefactors but for humble persons, in cases you never heard of, been inclined to disagree with the prosecutor's viewpoint and extend mercy," he said.

Resolutions were adopted opposing bills destroying Federal jurisdiction in controversies between citizens of different States; bills increasing the present jurisdictional amount of $3,000 in removal cases from State to Federal courts on the ground of diverse citizenship; denying removal from State to Federal courts on the ground of diverse citizenship, and taking away from the Federal district courts jurisdiction to interfere by injunction or otherwise with the orders of State administrative boards affecting rates chargeable by public utilities.

The association refused to adopt a resolution opposing "all legislation radically limiting the jurisdiction of Federal courts, or decreasing the power thereof. It was referred back to committee for further consideration after a prolonged floor debate.

Last night delegates and members of the Supreme Court bench were received at the White House. This morning they will elect a president to succeed Guy A. Thompson, of St. Louis, retiring.

BANK HOLDUP CLEW IS FOUND IN PICTURE

Woman Partially Identifies Rogues' Gallery Photo in $25,000 Robbery.

Police were searching last night for two known suspects in connection with the robbery of the Woodridge-Langdon Bank. An employe of the bank and a woman living near the institution had partially identified the picture of a known criminal as being the likeness of one of the youthful bandits who took $25,000 from the bank Wednesday after employes were trapped in the cellar. The other suspect sought has been connected with the robbery through important information received by police.

Much of the quest of a number of the score of picked detectives on the case yesterday centered on finding more persons in the neighborhood who have seen the robbers.

One woman, who lives nearby and whose name was not given, has said she saw two men walking near the bank early Wednesday morning. Another woman declares she saw a man seated at the wheel of a large, racy touring car. The former declares that the picture of the man which has been partially picked looks very much like one of the men.

Five men arrested shortly after police were called into the holdup investigation were released yesterday after Capt. Bernard W. Thompson, in active charge of the quest, was satisfied they were not connected with the robbery.

THE NEW SUPREME COURT.

The cornerstone of the new home of the United States Supreme Court was laid yesterday by President Hoover. Appropriate addresses were made by Chief Justice Hughes, in behalf of the court, and by John W. Davis in behalf of the American bar. The new building is of beautiful and imposing design. It will stand next to the grounds of the Capitol, on a site selected by the late Chief Justice Taft.

After more than fifty years of agitation for a suitable home, the Supreme Court will soon be provided for on a scale worthy of the dignity of the court and the nation. It is worth while to compare the character of public works sponsored and pushed forward by the Hoover administration with the jimcrack rural postoffices which Speaker Garner proposed to scatter over an astonished countryside. The new Supreme Court building will cost about $10,000,000, but it is necessary, and demanded by the people. There will be no counterpart of this citadel of justice. It is not built for the purpose of winning votes at the nation's expense.

All patriotic citizens applaud the sentiments expressed by Chief Justice Hughes and John W. Davis at yesterday's ceremonies. Faith in the United States Supreme Court is absolute. That tribunal stands as an example to nations which are still seeking for a way to make sure that governmental power shall not do injustice to the governed. The Supreme Court deals impartial justice to great and small without discrimination. No institution is too powerful to be brought within its jurisdiction, and no individual too humble to be safeguarded in his rights.

The members of the Supreme Court who will have the good fortune to participate in the first deliberations of the court in its new home are entitled to congratulations. They are maintaining great traditions, and will have the honor to begin the long line of tradition that is to envelop the new temple of justice.

NATIONAL DEFENSE TARIFFS.

Canada's new tariff increases the preference which that country allows to Great Britain and the British dominions in its market. In return Great Britain and the other dominions will allow Canadian products to be imported on more favorable terms. It is a mutual arrangement for the purpose of binding the far-flung segments of the British commonwealth of nations more closely together on an economic basis.

Attempts to make political capital of the Canadian tariff in this country are silly. It is true, of course, that Canada was obliged to seek new markets for her agricultural output when Congress extended protection to the American farmer. But no politician in the United States dares to suggest reduction of the agricultural tariff because farm prices in other countries are at disastrously low levels. Benefits that have accrued to the farmer through the Smoot-Hawley act far outweigh any loss of trade with Canada that may be involved in the new preference allowed to British goods.

There is a much more significant point, however, involved in the British-Canadian agreements. The commercial treaties growing out of the Ottawa conference are not economic in nature but political. Their primary purpose is to make the British commonwealth more self-sufficient. Canada can purchase manufactured goods more profitably from the United States than from England. Great Britain can buy many agricultural products from Argentina at lower prices than are available in Canada. Nevertheless, they agree to exchange Canadian farm products for British manufactured goods behind a tariff wall. This is obviously a political bargain, designed to strengthen the national defense of the British empire.

Naive economists who plead for low tariffs and free trade forget that there is such a force in the world as national interests. The preference system that is being put into effect by Great Britain and her dominions should remind these theorists that many factors aside from economics enter into the levying of tariffs. In reality, tariffs are a second line of national defense. That is one fundamental reason why the American tariff has been maintained, with only a few breaks, for more than 100 years.

Uncle Sam must have certain commodities, such as rubber, tin, coffee, &c., from other countries. Likewise this country has some natural advantages in the export field. American cotton and automobiles, for example, are first line necessities in many countries. This means that the United States will always carry on a lively foreign trade. But the interests of national defense demand the protection of American industry, labor and agriculture to an extent that will give this country a high degree of economic independence.

If the United States were dependent upon foreign markets for many of its industries and upon foreign industries for many of its essential supplies, any sudden emergency might bring disaster to the people. At all times the American economic system would be at the mercy of foreign interests. National security demands that this country shall be independent of all other countries, so far as possible, in the production of all necessities of life and national defense.

MALIGNING THE R. F. C.

President Hoover doubtless anticipated political attacks upon the integrity of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation when he appointed a majority of Democrats to the governing board. For a time the political muck-rakers were silent. But in the final stages of the campaign they can not resist accusing the President of distributing funds from the R. F. C. so as to strengthen his political position.

So far as is known Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, is the only person who has asked President Hoover to use the big stick over the relief agency. He was promptly informed by the President that the R. F. C. is an independent agency created by Congress with specific directions in the law for its conduct. "I have no authority or right, therefore," the President wrote, "to direct the board to make the specific loans or advances you request."

When Representative Byrns implies that funds entrusted to the relief agency are being used to swing votes to any one, he impugns the integrity of three distinguished members of his own party who are in control of the R. F. C. It is absurd to suppose that a Democratic majority of the board of directors would connive at a Republican victory at the expense of their own honor.

These charges grow out of the fact that California has obtained $102,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for two self-liquidating projects. As a matter of fact, the R. F. C. is having difficulty in finding self-liquidation projects that are available for loans under the law. It is anxious to lend more money as soon as possible, but applications that square with the law are not numerous. If there were any disposition to use this fund to create political sentiment, loans could have been made recklessly throughout the country. The fact that the board has adhered strictly to the law and is not taking chances on unsound projects is obvious proof that politics is not entering into its deliberations.

THE IMPREGNABLE DOLLAR.

The President in his speech in Des Moines stated that the heavy withdrawals of gold by European nations and hoarding in this country had jeopardized the American gold standard early this year. European speculators seized upon this statement and sold the dollar short last week. They were caught in the inevitable rebound on Monday. Foreign exchange speculators found themselves confronted with a market in which Dutch guilders lost 9½ points, Swiss francs 6 points, French francs 1¼ points and Belgian belgas 4 points. The other European currencies which are not on a gold basis also declined heavily. So ended another brief and abortive raid on the dollar.

There has been difference of opinion in financial circles in this country regarding the advisability of the admission on the part of the Chief Executive that, following Great Britain's suspension of note redemption, the demand for gold reached a point that imperiled the American monetary standard. Certainly it could have been no secret to all competent financial observers that such a drain of gold could not have been long withstood, and that the emergency banking and relief measures enacted were necessary steps which saved the situation.

The great French deposit of gold in New York was liquidated and the minor claims from other nations fully satisfied. With the demonstration that all who applied could be paid in gold, the demand quickly subsided. Gold began to flow back to the United States and hoarded money poured out of hiding places and safety deposit boxes.

It is not now a cause of apprehension to learn that during the crisis that disrupted the financial systems of nearly all the nations of the world there was a brief transitionary period when the American system was threatened. Rather it should instill confidence to know that in such a critical juncture the Nation had the resources and the resourceful leaders able promptly to meet the situation. Both statistically and psychologically the American dollar and gold standard are in stronger position today than ever before, which means that they are the strongest in the world.

LABORATORY OF KNOWLEDGE.

Prof. Albert Einstein's decision to carry on his future work in America is of less importance than the inauguration of the educational venture with which he will be associated. The name of this great scientist lends dignity to the Institute for Advanced Study, to be launched next year by Dr. Abraham Flexner, but if this new superuniversity succeeds, its effect upon American life may be far more important than the theory of relativity and all of its corollaries.

Dr. Flexner will establish what may be termed a laboratory of knowledge. It will not be a university, but a center for research and higher studies. Foremost scholars from all parts of the world are expected to be brought together for the sole purpose of increasing the world's store of knowledge. No effort will be made to expand the institute to large proportions. On the other hand, the utmost care will be taken to make it selective. Appointment of Prof. Einstein as head of the division of mathematical and theoretical physics suggests the high type of scholarship that will be encouraged.

Efforts will also be made to fix the salaries of staff members high enough to induce them to spend their entire time and energy in the quest of truth. The institute is regarded as a scholars' paradise. Its objective will be to concentrate the best minds in the educational field on fundamental problems.

Need for such an institution is obvious. The large universities do some work of this kind, but their chief business is dissemination of knowledge and theories that have already been worked out. For many years the universities have felt the need of more research. It is not enough to spread the meager knowledge man now has of his environment. If Dr. Flexner's dream comes true, the universities will be given a wonderful new source of information.

The Institute for Advanced Study may be the precursor of a new educational movement in this country. If one college of advanced scholars should succeed, others will certainly be established. Institutions of this kind may become the real factories of knowledge, leaving the colleges and universities in the role of mere assembling and distributing plants.

CAMPHOR'S DECLINE.

In considering the danger of monopolies it is interesting to observe how frequently checks appear to stop excesses even in the most uncontested fields. The story of camphor is typical of many another monopoly which held exclusive sway in its line, but which was, nevertheless, subjected to severe trials. In 1860 Japan supplied the entire world demand for camphor by exporting a few dozen tons yearly, which was used for medical purposes. With the discovery of celluloid, however, the demand rose rapidly, until by 1924 the production had increased to 5,000,000 tons, of which 80 per cent was used in the manufacture of celluloid and photographic film.

Yet camphor's role had not been clear sailing even up to this date. Before the end of the last century synthetic camphor had been discovered and the factories of Germany and France were on the point of breaking the Japanese monopoly, due to the fact that the camphor tree of Formosa, where Japan raised her great camphor crops, has no great yield until it is about sixty years old. To save their industry the Japanese tried to buy the entire output of synthetic camphor. These negotiations failing, Japan then decided to fight the manufacturers. In 1907 camphor was selling for $2 a pound in Europe, while the artificial variety sold for 50 to 75 cents. By ruthlessly cutting down her trees in Formosa without making provision for a second growth, Japan threw camphor on the market at 60 cents a pound.

Later skillful purchases of the synthetic product put Japan in a position to boost the price from $6 to $30 for fifty pounds. This again turned the chemists to research for a substitute, but before one was found the Japanese dropped the price to about 30 cents a pound. By 1912 the camphor trees of Formosa had been almost annihilated and artificial production had ceased, so at the outbreak of the war the small remaining stock of camphor, which was wanted for munitions, commanded a high price.

Today various plastic compounds have replaced celluloid, and even films are manufactured without camphor. There is little demand either for the genuine or artificial product, with the result that camphor today has fallen again into its original category as a medicine.

IN 1896 AND 1932

From the Kansas City Star.

Depression was extensively capitalized in the campaign of 1896, but not by the Republicans. It was taken over by William J. Bryan, who espoused the free coinage of silver as the paramount issue and offered it as the cure for the hard times. The issue of free silver smashed party lines. There were silver Republicans and gold Democrats. The gold Democrats had a ticket of their own. The silver Republicans went along with Bryan. So uncompromising were the sound money Democrats that in the convention that nominated Bryan, 162 delegates refused to vote, because of the platform declaration on money, and they sat unrecorded through the five ballots necessary to nominate.

Bryan, through his impassioned appeals to the unemployed, to all who had suffered from business reverses, and his specious arguments in favor of bimetallism, gave the sober-thinking people of the country one of the greatest scares of our history. For weeks before the election it was predicted that he would sweep the country with the exception of a negligible number of Eastern States. He did make a formidable showing, receiving 176 electoral votes to McKinley's 271, and he carried 22 of the 45 States.

It was the scare of 1896, together with remembrances of financial chaos following the Civil War, that brought about the prevailing custom in this country of writing long-term obligations payable in gold. In most countries such obligations are payable in currency.

A repetition of that scare would be disastrous to business. Its fulfillment would mean a run on banks that would produce a Nation-wide panic.

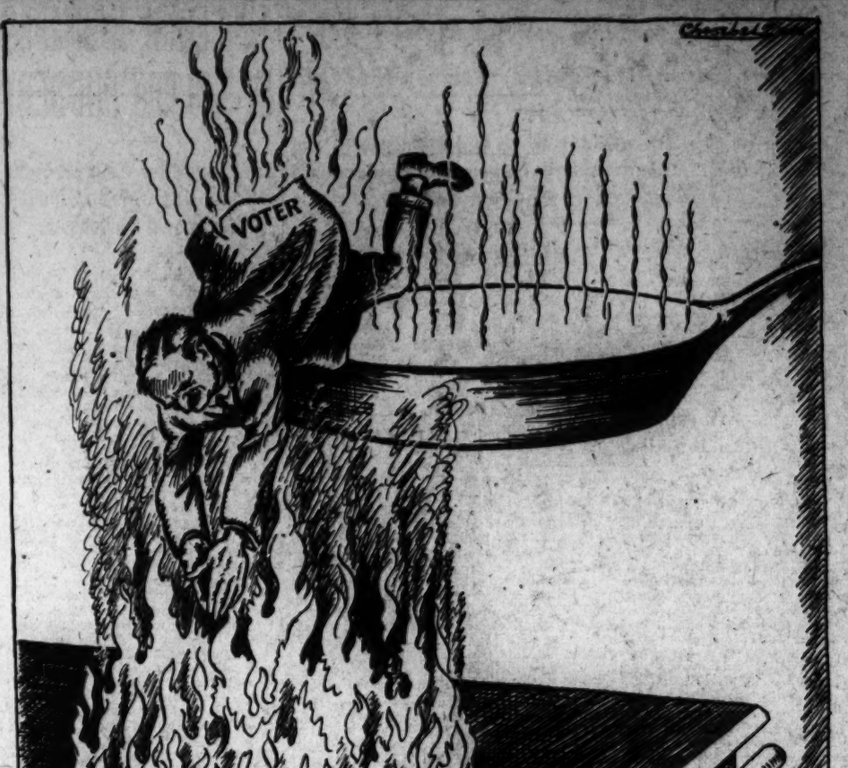
Nobody is advocating that this country go off gold. Few advocated such a deliberate policy in the European countries that went through the terrific distress of inflation after the war. The danger is more insidious.

It comes from proposals, such as went through the last Democratic House, to print paper money to meet huge obligations like the bonus, or to pay for extravagant expenditures on public works.

The dollar became suspect in Europe last spring when the Democratic House began running wild. Europe had seen the outcome of such recklessness too often in its own experience in the last decade.

The country is assured now President Hoover would meet such emergencies not merely by his words, but by the way he has successfully met them in the past. It can not know how Gov. Roosevelt would stand up under such a strain; and it does know the dangerous record of his party in Congress.

The question put up to the voters in the election is whether they can afford to take the risk of a change from certainty to uncertainty in so vital a matter at this time.



Out of the Frying Pan Into the Fire.

POST HASTE.

Are Progressives innocent enough to think that Democrats would ever nominate them for office?

Which really doesn't interest us as much as how and when renegades are read out of the Republican party, not wanting to miss the ceremony.

Why doesn't some political arguer use that original warning about not bartering equines in the midst of the current deluge?

The news from Germany indicates that the actual autocracy of Chancellor von Papen becomes a factual dictatorship.

Another good police reform would be to quit associating the names of mere suspects with a crime before they are known to have any connection with it. Later vindication never entirely removes the stigma.

Henry Doherty let some rather inflammatory vapors escape him at the gas convention. It is not a propitious time for service kings to inveigh against Government service.

Gov. Roosevelt has again proclaimed the undeniable truism that the way to restore prosperity is to make everybody prosperous.

Employment increased in New York last month 6½ per cent, but is probably just a Tammany trick to make the Republicans overconfident.

Speaker Garner secured a renewal of authority while in Albany to announce that he still does not know where he is going to speak.

Speaking of handicaps, how it does rankle Democratic orators that they can't afford to attack the palpable evidences of business improvement.

Canada is careful not to put any tariff on imports of American tourists, or restrain their spirits after they arrive.

From the number of forts that are constantly being captured and recaptured in the Gran Chaco one might get the erroneous impression that there is something there worth protecting.

Our inflationists will feel sure Great Britain must have made a mistake in figuring out her exports for September as the lowest in many years, what with that depreciated pound, and all.

Senator Lewis went to Paris to get a line on the election. Just back, Ham knows eggsactly whose omelete will be scorched.

New York, having cleaned up lewd burlesque is now going after loose milk.

As the Democrats have no big gun like an ex-President to reply to Mr. Coolidge, the speech may be prepared for the double-barreled candidate, Mr. Garner. PAUL HUDSON.

"THE BIG TRAIN."

In his prime Walter Johnson had few rivals and no superior in the pitcher's box, says the Brooklyn Eagle. He held all kinds of records. Against stout opposition at the plate and in competition with some of the finest hurling talent that baseball ever produced, he pitched his way to a reputation that will stand so long as the game endures. And apart from his great skill and indomitable courage, his qualities as a man and a sportsman won from the followers of baseball all over the country more real affection than was given to any of his contemporaries except, possibly, to that other great pitcher and gallant sportsman, Christy Mathewson.

We may well hope that the dropping of Walter Johnson by the Washington Club does not mean his disappearance from big league baseball. His playing days are over, but some post might be found for him in which his long experience and profound knowledge of the game could be turned to the advantage of an employer. His retirement to the shadows of a minor league would be a poor reward for years of splendid service.

When Food Is Scarce, the Bread One Man Eats Is Taken From the Mouth of Another

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN a politician or any other person who depends on the public's good will is tempted to comment on the disability allowance or compensation paid to veterans, any discretion he may possess cries in warning: "Let it alone! It's dynamite!"

It is dynamite because people do not understand the difference between "compensation" and "disability allowance." And that is precisely the reason why the subject must be discussed by those who feel a decent compassion for the man injured in service.

He isn't getting what he deserves, and he may lose the little he now receives if present abuses are continued until they alienate the sympathy of overburdened taxpayers.

"Compensation" is money paid to disabled veterans injured in service.

"Disability allowance" is money paid to veterans disabled in some measure after their return to private life.

Under the present law any veteran who served as much as ninety days in camp (not one day, as previously printed by error in this column) can obtain disability allowance for an affliction or injury that occurred since his discharge, provided he paid no income tax during the previous year and did not willfully misconduct himself to obtain the injury.

Now an injured or disabled man with a family to support deserves sympathy. But if his affliction is in no way connected with his military service, why should taxpayers support him? If he deserves support because he trained in camp three months, why not give similar care to every disabled citizen who helped win the war by paying taxes?

Those who claim disability allowance for something that happened after the war now cost the taxpayer more than the compensation paid to those injured in service.

Is that fair? If the ordinary citizen must be bled white to provide money for veterans, is it right that the wounded and the dependents of the slain should receive the smaller share of it?

It is disgraceful to pay wounded and helpless war victims a niggardly pauper wage. They should be paid as much as sound men can earn. And dependents of the slain should receive enough to live in comfort and security.

But they will not get justice, and the money they deserve will be given to others, until taxpayers learn to distinguish between those injured in service and those handicapped by age since the war.

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

Mr. Hoover in Iowa.

Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Hoover went to Des Moines with his first speech of the mid-campaign because Iowa is the State of his birth and boyhood and because it is in the heart of the Republican disaffection and dissent. In such a region the subject would be hard times on the farm and the candidate virtually confined himself to it.

Any one except the extreme partisan or the extreme malcontent will concede that the President handled his facts and his arguments well. He made a strong case for the command in a storm. An administration which began in the fairest of weather was hit by every elemental force which could arise out of economics disorder the world over. The blows multiplied and grew more terrific, defeating the hopes that the fury would spend itself. Mr. Hoover gave a vivid picture of the approach to national calamity in vanished revenue, wrecked currency and destroyed credit.

Coolidge to Speak Sense.

New York Sun.

The promise of Calvin Coolidge to speak at Madison Square Garden on October 11 on behalf of Mr. Hoover's campaign for reelection is characteristic of the former President's loyalty. His aid is needed by his party in a campaign wherein loose thinking has too long gone without a corrective in the Coolidge manner. What he may have to say will be earnestly heard and seriously pondered.

It is excellent strategy for him to come forward as the campaign enters a final, intensive phase. It is a kind of Coolidge tradition that the Sage of Northampton habitually sits back to listen to what others have to say before presenting his own views. When he does present them they are usually compact of shrewd observation, sound intelligence, practical experience and plain horse sense. New York will know how to make him welcome on this occasion.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Southern Democrat Thinks James A. Reed's Speech Helped Hoover—Disgusted With Party Strategy.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read Senator James A. Reed's speech at Des Moines, Iowa, with much interest and delight. He verified President Hoover, just as I thought he would. He is the same James A. Reed he was when he was here in the Senate. He then vilified President Woodrow Wilson. His whole speech was full of vilification and absolutely destitute of constructive statesmanship.

Knowing the Democratic party as I do, being one myself, I really believe James A. Reed made President Hoover more votes than any speech yet made in this campaign. I wish the Democratic committee would send Senator James A. Reed to Dallas, Tex.; Little Rock, Ark.; New Orleans, La.; Jackson, Miss.; Atlanta, Ga.; Raleigh, N. C.; Greenville, S. C., and Richmond, Va., to make this same speech, and these Southern States would all vote for Hoover as solidly as Texas went for Hoover in 1928. I do not believe Roosevelt has Louisiana "in the bag," as Huey Long said. The majority of Southern Democrats don't think Roosevelt is one whit better than Al Smith.

Let me suggest that multimillionaires like Brother Rockefeller and Morgan have Senator James A. Reed go to these cities and deliver this same speech and President Hoover would be elected "hands down." I am 50 years a Democrat, and I believe I know the Southern people, being one myself, and I give this as my opinion.

I have just read former President Coolidge's speech, made in New York City. What a contrast! For fifteen years or more I have been ashamed of the statesmanship exhibited by the Democratic party.

The tragedy of it all is some of the Democratic leaders lay the blame for the depression and general condition on President Hoover's administration. They don't know that every other country in the world is ten times as bad off as the United States. Their stock in trade is to curse President Hoover and blame him for the conditions of things. Sensible people all know that had it not been for President Hoover our Nation would have collapsed a year ago, as Russia did ten years ago.

Schoolgirl's Enterprise in Exchange of Flags Shows Spirit of Rising Generation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I refer to an incident reported several days ago, where a little Washington schoolgirl took the matter into her own hands of commencing an exchange of U. S. flags for British flags after the local school supervisors had failed to do anything upon invitation of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission and our consul in England. The little miss evidently has a vast pride in her city and her school, and felt that if the local school authorities hadn't enough "push" to carry out this gesture of good will with the school children of Washington, England, she would do her bit, anyway.

Perhaps some people may think these little incidents weigh nothing; but they do, and sometimes have surprising results, and she is to be congratulated.

In the progressiveness of this little girl I foresee that the coming generation is not going to stand for some of the things which we have tolerated, and that we have nothing to fear that its conception of better government is Communism. J. M. WILSON.

"Coolidge Republican" Who Supports Roosevelt Is Called a Fair Weather Sailor.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to have a little space in your paper to answer a letter printed in your issue of October 10, and signed by Mr. A. S. Beane.

Mr. Beane says he is a Coolidge Republican, but supporting Mr. Roosevelt. I doubt, Mr. Beane, you ever being a follower of Calvin Coolidge when you now advocate the election of a radical like Franklin D. Roosevelt, who in turn surreptitiously advocates fiat money. Your arugment does not ring true, and is not flavored with the political spice so characteristic of Calvin Coolidge.

I think the Republican party has not a few fair weather sailors on its sailboat, who, feeling the first slight puff of a compaign wind, scurry to some haven populated with political renegades. H. E. RUST.

THWARTED.

His mother saw a pulpit in some old cathedral dim
And all the Sunday worshipers being won to truth by him,
But though he longed to please her,
preacher man he couldn't be,
For there was that within him which kept whispering of the sea.

His father thought a lawyer in good time he ought to make.
In dreams he saw him pleading for some human life at stake.
But courtrooms never called him. Still indifferent was he
To all save ships and sailor men and stories of the sea.

He never graced the pulpit, never rose to be a judge.
He lived and slaved for 60 years an ordinary drudge,
And all his years were dreary, since they never set him free
To follow far his fancy and go sailing out to sea.

Adult Education Urged by Speaker

Kiwanis Luncheon Guests Hear Vocational Guidance Stressed.

A departure from the old method of "mass education," and concentration on the objective of educating all adults in the United States, should be the new aim of vocational guidance, L. R. Alderman, of the Office of Education, United States Department of the Interior, told the Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday, at the Raleigh Hotel, which was dedicated to vocational guidance.

Mr. Alderman pointed out that the only way of making the United States an educated nation is to bring knowledge to the millions of illiterates. People far advanced in age can learn as fast as children of 14, he reminded his audience.

Dewey Zirkin, first vice president, told of the work the club has done in interest of vocational guidance in the schools in the past three years, and pledged continued cooperation. Pinkney J. Harmon reported on the vocational radio programs of the club broadcast at 4:30 p. m. every Tuesday. Lewis T. Breuninger, second vice president, welcomed the guests.

Closer Cooperation Is Urged by Offutt

Speaks in Martinsburg at Joint Session of Four Groups.

Closer cooperation between Washington and the surrounding area was urged by George W. Offutt, president of the Washington Board of Trade, in an address last night at the Shenandoah Hotel at Martinsburg, W. Va., at a joint meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, the Kiwanis, Monarch and Rotary clubs.

"It is a source of keen regret and disappointment," said Mr. Offutt, "that the broad link which should and would bring us so much closer together has not been perfected and completed long before this. We feel that Washington is your real neighbor and that you, after all, are part of what ought to be the large metropolitan radius around the Nation's Capital."

As a step in this direction, Mr. Offutt told of the work of the Greater National Capital committee of the Washington Board of Trade. Those present at the meeting included Z. D. Blackistone, president of the Mountain View Orchard Co., of Martinsburg; Edwin F. Hill, president, and Pinkney J. Harman, and George C. Shaffer, of the Washington Kiwanis Club.

MARYLAND U. HEADS DELAY HEARING ON 2

Consideration of Protests by Students on Suspension Put Off Indefinitely.

College Park, Md., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The board of regents meeting at the University of Maryland, scheduled for today to hear the protests against the suspension of two students for refusing to take the compulsory military training course, has been postponed indefinitely.

Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the university, said it was impossible for a quorum of the board members to attend the meeting. Wayne Lees, of Washington, and Ennis Coale, of Belair, Md., were suspended last week by the president until "they could abide by the regulations of the college."

One of the two suspended students, Dr. Pearson said, had admitted he received assistance in writing his protest to the board of regents.

"Quite a bit of literature from the committee on militarism in education has been spread not only through our school but other schools," Dr. Pearson added. "It is highly inflammatory propaganda. Inflammatory is the proper word to use. The propaganda is of a kind urging the students to rise up against military training."

cess lines with the new cape shoulder line, and a long double train, and as she and the President established themselves in the blue room, which was effectively decorated with ferns and vases of tea roses, the lines moved forward.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A charming evening gown of black velvet has a most interesting bodice effect that ties in back and in front, of red velvet. (Courtesy of Helen Hubert, Paris.)

HOUSE DRESS! The very sound of the word used to conjure up memories of ugly stiff calico or something equally as bad, didn't it? Ah, the house dress of today, apart from a few necessary characteristics, is truly little different from the dress one wears on the street!

If the lovely lady of the house but realized the tremendous importance of always appearing neatly and charmingly attired, especially in the morning! No matter how arduous the managing of the house may be—no matter how numerous or how young the little ones, she can and should be always chic. As few as four house dresses, if they have been selected with an eye to their easy laundering, simplicity and chic, are sufficient. The clever little mother will wear a fresh one for breakfast, then whisk it off and fold it away in order to resume the one from the day before that is not so fresh, in which to do the heavier work. Then the fresh one is put on again for luncheon and this in turn is "second choice" for next day!

And to continue the fashion chat our friend "D. V. deV." wrote us from Paris: "And may I say that it was positive relief to see the Worth evening gowns with no sleeves at all * * * stately and entirely "Worthy" if you see what I mean!

"Not that this is anything against the houses that still are making sleeves for the evening. I was as excited as anybody over Lanvin's black sequin sleeves on a white evening gown. And Augustabernard's pale yellow crepe with sleeves of nasturtiums stirred me strangely. I saw these on a lady at the Ambassador's at Cannes. They were like a muff of nasturtiums slipped up the arm to the shoulder and snapped on. When this particular lady decided to finish with the evening she simply slipped her sleeves off and her coat on, and out she went with a bunch of nasturtiums in hand!

"But you know how enough is enough * * * and it seemed good to see these Worth evening gowns daring it with just nothing on the upper arm or shoulder."

It is still a lovely gift and a delightful accessory! An evening bag and shoe ensemble, I mean. I sketched a set today with real cabochon trimming.

* * * *

And Helen Hubert, of the old house of Tollman, remember? has designed a subtle evening gown of black velvet with red velvet bodice effect that ties back and front. The bodice has cape wings, too—and the whole is just enough and not too much!

* * * *

Glad to see how many little ladies really appreciate the truly artistic and elegant! The way they have sent for the directions for making real parchment shades, I mean—you know, real shades out of the real parchment skins! With Christmas on the way and all, it is wise to send for this, too. And who knows when you might wish you had—for if you ever want to know how to make parchment shades, wherever will you really go to find out? So just in case you might want to know some day, if not today, send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make parchment shades out of real parchment skin.

Au revoir.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

SPASMS IN CHILDREN.

WHY do children have convulsions? Dr. M. G. Peterman offers the results of a study of nearly 500 children as an answer to the question. Putting the matter simply, his answer is: For various reasons. The probability that a given cause will be the answer in a given case depends on many things, one of which is the age of the child. It is true that, as a rule, an attack is a self-limited condition and the child will get over it in a few minutes, whatever treatment is used. But it is also true that no one should be satisfied with it. Every case should be studied to discover why convulsions come on and what can be done to prevent another attack in the remote future, as well as during this illness.

But few of the children investigated were under one month of age, since young babies, not congenitally deformed, are not subject to convulsions. Of those investigated, about one-half had this trouble because of birth injuries, and the rest because of some acute infection such as whooping cough, measles, or diarrhea.

From one to six months of age babies are more prone to convulsions. One-third of those in this group have convulsions resulting from infections. Roughly speaking, about one-sixth had the attacks because of birth injuries, one-sixth because of spasmophile diathesis, and the other about one-third because of miscellaneous causes. In one-fifth of the cases the cause was not discovered.

In babies from 6 to 36 months of age the distribution is different. A little more than one-third were due to spasmophilia; and the other 30 per cent were divided among the less important causes. Birth injury dropped to a low place in the list. Epilepsy is found for the first time. Nearly 7 per cent of all the cases had epilepsy.

In the three to ten year group epilepsy was the leading cause. It was held responsible for 57 per cent of the cases. Birth injuries ranked second with a far lower percentage. Acute infections were third, and spasmophilia was well toward the bottom of the list.

In the group 10 to 15 years of age, epilepsy was very much the most important, being responsible for almost three-fourths of the cases. The other one-fourth were divided among such causes as birth accidents, other accidents, acute infections and sleeping sickness (which was given a separate heading, but it really a form of acute infection. Spasmophilia disappeared from the list.

So far as epilepsy is concerned this study indicates that it is seldom, if ever, the cause of convulsions in newly born babies. It is not until the baby is more than 6 months of age that epilepsy can be proved to be the cause. If a child beyond 3 years of age, but less than 10, has a convulsion, the chance is more than even that the cause is epilepsy. If the age is beyond 10 and less than 15, when the attack of convulsions appears, the chances are three to one that the child is headed for epilepsy. Fortunately, epilepsy is rather amenable to treatment in children. Dieting and the development of habits are the treatments now in vogue.

The spasm habit must not be allowed to establish itself, since each attack paves the way for another.

RED SKIN.

Mrs. K. H. K. writes: What causes the skin on the face to become coarse looking and tiny blood vessels to show through the skin, giving it a red look? The condition is gradually getting worse and I can't afford a doctor's fee. I am 35 years old and married. I do not eat spicy foods.

REPLY.

There are many causes. Drinking alcoholic beverages usually gets the blame. Eating highly seasoned foods ranks second on the list. Third come various digestive disorders. Exposure to sun and wind ranks high.

LOAD ON THYROID.

1. A. W. writes: Could pregnancy in the early stages be responsible for a thyroid irritation?

REPLY.

It could. Pregnancy puts a heavy strain on the thyroid.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

NO woman need be told that the hair is basking in the beauty spotlight right now. Not so long ago a woman was as lovely as her skin. Her hair, hidden under a smart (and sometimes not so smart) hat, didn't matter. But, the old order changeth. And the modern woman's beauty tasks become delightfully more involved. Now, in addition to keeping her complexion clear and young, she must keep her hair in topnotch fashion.

This means conditioning the hair—keeping scalp clean and free from dandruff; keeping hair the right texture, soft and silky; correcting dryness, oiliness or coarseness; keeping the hair set properly, becomingly, in place at all times, and preserving the lovely luster that only cared-for hair can have. This means, too, that the hair must be thinned out regularly, by an expert.

Thinned Hair for Chic Hats.

Thick hair is no longer a beauty asset. Far from it. At the very first fall openings in Paris and New York the smart turban, skull and tiny sailor hats were sponsored. The smartest these eyes have feasted on in a long time! It is impossible to wear these models over long, thick hair.

No matter what the coiffure, the hair follows closely the lines of the head and must be well-groomed, attractively arranged from all sides, at all times of the day.

Remember how that heavy bun at the back used to distort the shape of the smartest hat? Remember how ugly it looked—hat and hair? Happily, it is gone. And in its place, even when the hair is long, little ringlet curls, flat coils, thin rolls give the head a beautiful, cared-for, finished look. With the fashionable tilted, over-the-right-eye hats, all the coiffure is visible on the left side and back, and the very latest fashion is a softly sculptured style, not too set, yet never out of place.

Thinning Out Important.

So important and popular has the thinning out process become that most beauty salons have this special service, whether or not the rest of the hair is cut. And experts are enlisted for this work. For it is very different from the hair thinning of many years ago.

I remember an aunt whose hair was "the talk of the town" and her pride and boast, because it was long enough to sit on. In fact, it was down to her ankles. And so thick! Every two weeks sections would be cut out. Which left stubby ends at the crown. How she ever arranged it nicely at the top is beyond me. And how she could carry her head proudly under that heavy mass I don't know. Nowadays hair is seldom below shoulder length.

You will want to study the hints given in my little bulletin on the coiffure. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 14 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 4:15 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., and from 11:30 p. m. to midnight.

October 14 is not a day in which to sit back contentedly and sigh. You will be traveling over one of the rougher stretches of life's road, and bumps and jolts will come in the form of unlooked for financial reverses, failure of carefully laid plans, and from the pettiness and willfulness of associates. Not a good day for travel nor for the taking up of new friendships.

Children born on this October 14 will undoubtedly be reticent, unassuming and lovable. They will be marked with a sensitiveness which may be taken for bashfulness but will in fact tend more to be a shrinking from the crudities of life. These children will always seek the beauties of life, will enjoy the out of doors though not in a strenuous way, and will be fond of and kind to animals.

If you were born on October 14 you are probably inclined to let love of some kind rule your life to an exaggerated extent. Love properly guided is a splendid thing, but you must be careful not to become too pleasure loving, nor to let your love of any one person or thing warp your entire existence. You must learn to stand on your own feet, make your own decisions and once they are made, stand by them. Your gentle and kind nature will bring you many friends but you must be careful not to come to rely too much on them.

You have probably found it difficult to attain a more or less settled existence and are perhaps unhappy because of that. This may be due to the fact that you are inclined to play with life, to dabble in this and that without ever taking a firm hold of anything and settling down to business. Your love of beauty is one of the great motivating forces in your life, and though you may not be actively engaged in the arts, you derive much satisfaction from them. You are fond of music and are probably an excellent dancer.

Yours is an understanding nature, and you live to give and receive affection. You love children, and are extremely sympathetic to the aims, desires and ideals of the younger generation.

William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania.
John Ray, jurist.

MAKING THE BEST OF A BAD SITUATION.

PROBABLY the chief beauty of the game of Contract Bridge is the fact that until the last card has been played to the last trick one can never be sure that all is lost. The mark of the expert Contract Bridge player is his ability to get the most out of each hand that he encounters and to make the best of every bad situation he finds confronting him. The well-oiled Bridge machine, merely because of the fact that it has slipped a cog or two on the bidding and does not find itself in the best contract, will not immediately break down; it will try to do the next best thing and make this possibly more difficult and less lucrative contract, which has to be fulfilled.

The hand given below was played by two of the younger tournament players at a New York City Bridge club recently. Although the bidding wound up with North and South the Declarers at a contract which could not possibly produce for them the maximum possible result, even though fulfilled, the Declarer saw no reason to take a loss on the hand merely because of the fact that he no longer could get the maximum possible profit.

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A 5 ♡ 5 ◇ K 8 6 5 4 2 ♣ A K Q 2
♠ 9 4 2 ♡ Q J 10 ◇ A J 9 7 ♣ J 8 6	N W E S	♠ 10 7 6 ♡ 9 8 4 3 2 ◇ 10 ♣ 9 7 4 3
	♠ K Q J 8 3 ♡ A K 7 6 ◇ Q 3 ♣ 10 5

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3◇	Pass
3♡	Pass	4♣	Pass
4◇	Pass	5◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

It is pretty hard to place one's finger just where the fault was in the bidding of the hand. South probably should have, at some stage, rebid his spades; on the other hand, if North had not crowded the bidding with his borderline Force, it would have been much easier for South to have done so. At any rate, North was the Declarer at a five-diamond contract which, incidentally, West had appeared quite anxious to double and had finally decided not to. It was evident to North that six spades was a lay-down, but that he needed some very fine breaks to make even as much as five diamonds.

The Opening lead was a spade, which North took with the Ace in his hand. A low diamond was led, East, of course, playing the Ten, and West taking Dummy's Queen with his Ace. Declarer quite correctly figured West for the remaining three diamonds, on the drop of the Ten. He knew that on another diamond lead from Dummy, West would merely split his equals and then hold a ten-ace over Declarer's 8. It was necessary, obviously, to coup the hand to avoid losing two more diamond tricks. To coup the hand North knew he needed an extra entry to Dummy and this could be found by ruffing a club with Dummy's diamond 3, even though in doing this he would be unable to lead trumps even once more. After West took his diamond Ace he returned the heart Queen, Declarer took with the King in Dummy and immediately shortened himself by ruffing a low heart. Two rounds of clubs were led and the third club was ruffed in Dummy. Declarer again led a low heart, which he ruffed in his hand, shortening himself for the second and last time, and now returned to the Dummy with a small spade. On the spade Queen he threw his remaining high club and on the last spade lead West was helpless. He made his best play, the diamond 9, and Declarer made the very fine play of undertrumping with a small diamond. He now had left in his hand the diamond King and 8, which could very successfully handle the Knave and 7 which were left in the West hand.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 10 7 ♡ A Q J 9 6 ◇ J 6 ♣ A 10 9 5
♠ K 9 8 5 ♡ 7 5 ◇ A Q 10 9 4 3 ♣ 7	N W E S	♠ J 3 ♡ 10 4 3 2 ◇ 8 7 2 ♣ Q 6 3 2
	♠ A Q 6 4 2 ♡ K 8 ◇ K 5 ♣ K J 8 4

Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

1 cup chopped nuts.

Melt the chocolate and add the butter and sugar. Add the egg without beating and the milk. Use 2 tablespoons of the flour to coat the chopped nuts. Then add the nuts and the sifted dry ingredients to the liquid mixture. Stir this thoroughly and add the vanilla. Drop the batter by teaspoonfuls on a greased baking sheet or an ordinary baking pan, inverted. Bake in a quick oven (about 375 to 400 degrees Fahrenheit). ½ cup chopped nut meats
½ teaspoon soda dissolved in 1 teaspoon water
1½ cups fine oatmeal
1½ cups flour
1 egg
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Cream the fat and sugar and add the beaten egg. Sift the dry ingredients, except the oatmeal, together and add with the milk to the egg, sugar and butter mixture. Add the soda which has been dissolved in the water, and then the oatmeal, which has been mixed with the nuts and raisins. Mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet and bake to a golden brown in a fairly hot oven. Remove from the pan while hot.

THE ISLES OF GREECE AS SEEN BY MR. INSULL.

(With apologies to Lord Myron.)

The isles of Greece! The isles of Greece
Where burning Sappho loved and sung,
Where grew the arts of war and peace,
Where Delos rose and Phoebus sprung
Eternal summer gilds them yet—
And here my sun, I fear, is set!

II.

The Scian and the Telan muse,
The hero's harp, the lover's lute,
Have found the fame your shores refuse;
For me there is a distant hoot.
I know the anguish of arrest
Among the Islands of the Blest!

III.

The mountains look on Marathon,
And Marathon looks to the sea;
And musing in the land alone,
I wonder what's become of me!
I sit and ponder where I am—
It seems incredible I'm Sam!

IV.

A king sate on the rocky brow
Which looks o'er sea-born Salamis;
And ships by thousands lay below,
And men and power all were his!
He counted them at break of day—
And when the sun set, where were they?

V.

And where are they? And where am I?
'Tis often puzzles me, and how!
But yesterday I ruled on high
And wore a garland o'er my brow;
I wonder if they ever will Forgive me in Chicago, Ill.?

VI.

Place me on Sunium's marbled steep
Where nothing, save the waves and I,
May hear our mutual murmurs sweep;
There, swan-like, let me muse and die;
In me there is a Grecian streak—
My books, the probers say, are Greek!

Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

THE first of a series of eleven broadcasts by the Philadelphia Orchestra of 110 men, under the direction of Leopold Stokowski, will be heard this afternoon (WMAL, 2:30 to 4 o'clock). Each of the broadcasts will be made at one of the regular appearances on the stage of the Academy of Music in Philadelphia. Other dates are October 28, November 4 and 18; December 9 and 30; March 3 and 10; April 7, 21 and 28.

The concert today will consist of Brahms' Symphony No. 1, in C Minor and the Vorspiele, Liebesnacht and Liebestod from Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde."

The flight of Samuel Insull, Chicago public utilities financier, will be dramatized during the "March of Time" (WMAL, 8:30 p. m.). Huey P. Long, the Louisiana "kingfish," will hold the spotlight in a review of campaign developments during the last seven days. Other dramatizations will be concerned with the eviction of the papal delegate from Mexico as the climax of the struggle between the civil government and the Roman Catholic Church, and the recent visit of young Prince Michael of Roumania to his mother, Princess Helen, in London.

FOOTBALL forecasts will hold the attention of enthusiasts of that game during the evening. Among the "pig-skin" hours will be the "All-America Football Show," with a talk by H. O. "Fritz" Crisler, now in his first year as football coach at Princeton, N. J., and Walsh's ranking of the country's ten best players of the week and reenactments of exciting moments from two games of last Saturday.

Football songs and marches of the University of Wisconsin will be mixed with dance tunes of Harry Reser's Eskimos (WRC, 9 p. m.).

WHAT the nations of the world are doing in their attempts to overcome the depression will be revealed by their consuls general in New York in a series of special programs (WRC, 11:15 p. m.). Gerald Campbell, of Great Britain, will be the first speaker. Cesare Sodero's orchestra will furnish the music.

The fifth consecutive season of the Music Appreciation Hour, directed by Walter Damrosch, will be inaugurated at 11 o'clock this morning over WRC.

The Series A concert will open with the Scherzo, from Glazounov's Symphony, No. 5, in B Flat, and continue with "Anitra's Dance" from Grieg's "Peer Gynt," Suite No. 1; "Persian March," by Johann Strauss, jr.; "Valse Lente," from Delibes' "Sylvia," and the march from Wagner's opera "Tannhauser."

The Series B concert: "Sounds of the Forest," from Wagner's "Siegfried;" Schumann's "Evening Song," and Mendelssohn's "Spring Song."

Arthur Tracy will sing a song from his role in the "Big Broadcast" film during the Music That Satisfies period (WMAL, 10 p. m.).

WHO was the N. B. C.-WJZ announcer who referred to the head of the R. C. A., presiding at the meeting in New York addressed by Coolidge, as Gen. "Charles" G. Harbord?

The Prince of Wales, after listening to Harry Reser playing his banjo in London several years ago, decided he would study the banjo. He insisted that Reser be his instructor.

"ANTS are the most industrious insects. They are always at work and never play," remarked Frank Crumit.

"Oh, is that so," exclaimed Julia Sanderson, "well, I've seen many of them at picnics."

Atlanta Composer Dies.

Atlanta, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Miss Kate Lee Harralson, widely known Atlanta musician and for 25 years director of music in the public schools, died here today. She retired two years ago on account of declining health. "The Cherokee Rose," a song she composed, will be featured in the Georgia bicentennial celebration next year.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL.

HAVING been unhappily compelled by other duties—including this columnar chore, for one—to terminate the second visit to "The New Earth" at the end of the first act last evening, your reporter nevertheless haunted the nether shadows of the National Theater sufficiently long to reach a definite conclusion that when Claude Rains, who assumed the role of Wang Lung for the first time last night, gets a little more into the "feel" of the character he will be a more convincing tiller of the soil, husband and land owner than Earle Larimore, whom he supersedes in the part.

Mr. Rains succeeded admirably in the first five scenes of the play in creating something of the visual illusion of a Chinese laborer, although there were moments when, like Mr. Larimore, his accents were a bit too polished for complete conviction. Physically, he is much the better equipped of the two for the assignment.

Contrary to earlier rumor, no new scene was added to the movement of "The Good Earth" last night, nor will any be prior to the New York opening next Monday night, the play being "set" insofar as this aspect of its preparation is concerned—or so I am informed by those who should know.

Neither were there any other substitutions among the personnel of the cast. I am told that it is unlikely now that any others will be made.

An accelerated tempo and perfected mechanism gave last night's performance of the first act a better pace and smoother continuity than was the case on Monday night, auguring well for its Broadway premiere, only a few days away.

The nominations of players, directors, technicians, producers, writers and what not for the annual awards of merit made by the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences have been made public in Hollywood.

One candidate from each of nine classifications will be selected by secret ballot of the academy membership, which itself is composed of representatives from all branches of the film industry.

For these fifth annual awards the winners will receive the traditional gold statuettes for outstanding work in the year ended last July 31.

Marie Dressler, who won the award for the best performance by an actress in 1931, again is one of the candidates named for this year's honor, by virtue of her portrayal of the title role in "Emma." Her competitors are Lynn Fontanne, for her work in "The Guardsman," and Helen Hayes, for her performance in "The Sin of Madelon Claudet."

The best performances by actors are voted to be Wallace Beery's "Champ," Alfred Lunt's "Guardsman" and Fredric March's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

Best direction, Frank Borzage, "Bad Girl;" King Vidor, "The Champ;" Josef von Sternberg, "Shanghai Express."

The bestowal for the best original motion picture story will be made from among "The Champ," by Frances Marion; "Lady and Gent," by Grover Jones and William Slavens McNutt; "Star Witness," by Lucien Hubbard, and "What Price Hollywood," by Gene Fowler, Rowland Brown and Adela Rogers St. John. The best adaptations are held to be "Arrowsmith," by Sidney Howard; "Bad Girl," by Edwin Burke, and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," by Percy Heath and Samuel Hoffenstein.

And now, if you haven't been able to make up your mind which were the best productions you saw last year, the Academy is prepared to tell you they were "Arrowsmith," Samuel Goldwyn, Inc.; "Bad Girl," Fox; "The Champ," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; "Five Star Final," First National; "Grand Hotel," M-G-M; "One Hour With You," Paramount; "Smiling Lieutenant," Paramount; "Shanghai Express," Paramount.

You have until November 1 to make future book on the probable winners of first honors out of all these groups.

Gilbert and Sullivan's tuneful and perennially popular—as we have said at the sewing circle for years on end—operetta, "H. M. S. Pinafore," will be presented by the Estelle Wentworth Opera Group at Central High School Auditorium next Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock, under the sponsorship of the Community Center Department. This repetition of the performance given with such success in the Sylvan Theater last August is in response to insistent public demand. Ira P. Meyer, Maxine De Silvia, Elliott Button, Alma Harris and Raymond Baine will head the cast and Miss Wentworth will conduct. A flat price of 25 cents will be assessed for all seats, although it is promised that kind of a performance will not be given.

As is his custom whenever a "Black and White Revue" plays his house, Mr. Jimmy Lake, Ninth street's glass of fashion and mold of form, announces that a special midnight performance will be given at the Gayety Theater on Firday night, October 21, one week from tonight, by the shortest route. This year's "Black and White Revue," with a total roster of 60 comedians, singers and dancers, opens its week's engagement at the Gayety with a matinee Sunday.

The boys certainly get themselves into a lot of quandaries over titles. A story about a sports editor was filmed under the working title of "Sports Page," and then was retitled "Free, White and 21," to whip up its sex appeal, or something, despite the fact that the latter tag had already been hung on a yarn originally purchased for the screen use of Constance Bennett. But that was no matter, because the new title didn't click either, so now RKO is asking the office force for suggestions.

I agree with Mr. Hubbard Keavy that, everything considered, a pretty good title would be "Sports Page." It would still be good, even if it happened to run behind "Front Page" as it should to preserve the unities, or is it verities?

The Metropolitan Opera Company of New York will soon be in the market for another canary. According to word hot off the wire from Broadway, Grace Moore, who came from Jellico, Tenn., to stir the operatic world with her soprano voice, has "excused herself" from opera this season to sing the title role in "Du Barry," an operetta which has been produced successfully in Berlin, is current in London and will be given its American tryout in Boston on November 7, returning to New York a fortnight later.

Miss Moore's elation is said to have been slightly dampened by a newspaper item prematurely exposure of her plans before she had broached it to Gatti-Casazzi, impresario of the Metropolitan. He was given the impression that Miss More had simply walked out and left him flat, but was much relieved to learn later that she had merely walked out and left him flat!

As Olsen and Johnson would probably put it, when you Gatti-Casazzi, you Gatti-Casazzi!

Ted Healy, one of the most unctuous of the contemporary "nut" comics, who will advance upon Loew's Fox Theater with his army of assistants and take possession of the stage today.

Second List of Questions Given in 'Crusoe' Contest

For generations the famous classic, "Robinson Crusoe," has been read. The fantastic adventures of the hero upon his desolate island has thrilled young and old. Millions of copies of the book have been sold and today it is almost as widely read as ever. Thousands of adult readers of The Post have read and reread the classic many times. It is for them and the boys and girls of school age that The Post is conducting its "Do You Know Your Robinson Crusoe" contest.

A prize of $10 in cash will be given to the reader who answer correctly the largest number of the 30 questions on the classic "Robinson Crusoe," which are being printed in The Post in three instalments of ten questions each. The next 25 best lists of answers will receive two tickets to Loew's Fox Theater for the picture, "Mr. Robinson Crusoe," or for any other picture shown at that theater in the future. The picture, "Mr. Robinson Crusoe," in which Douglas Fairbanks plays the leading role, opens at the Fox today.

Answers to the question should not be sent in until the complete list has been printed. The contest closes at noon Tuesday. Answers should be sent to the Robinson Crusoe Editor of The Washington Post. The first list of ten question was published in The Post yesterday. The second follows:

1. Was Crusoe, when cast away, a man of ingenuity or do you think the circumstances in which he found himself developed his inventive powers?

2. What nationality was his man, Friday?

3. Could Friday have come in contact with any other white man before he met Crusoe? If not, how do you account for his quick understanding of Crusoe's language?

4. DeFoe's book states that there was but a single dog on the island. Whence do you think he came?

5. Of what was Friday's famous umbrella composed?

6. Crusoe was an indifferent swimmer. Yet he "made land" from a distance of more than 2 miles. How do you reconcile the two facts?

7. When Crusoe saw Friday's bare footprint in the sands, how did he know it was not that of another white man?

8. Where was Crusoe's island and what is it now called?

9. Who was the man upon whose experience DeFoe's tale was based?

10. Was the fact that DeFoe mentioned cannibals in his book historically correct?

NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

METROPOLITAN

"THE PHANTOM PRESIDENT." Paramount picturization of the novel by George F. Worts, adapted to the screen by Walter DeLeon and Harlan Thompson, with music and lyrics by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, starring George M. Cohan, with Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante, Claudette Colbert, George Barbier and Sidney Toler. Directed by Norman Taurog.

Shrewdly contrived, splendidly cast and timely no end, this vigorous and tuneful political burlesque may be relied upon to furnish an hour of hilarious entertainment from which the venom of bitter partisanship has been entirely omitted.

The piece has as its basis the substitution of a medicine-show faker, with a world of personality, for a presidential candidate who possesses every qualification for the office but a spirit of camaraderia and the ability to win the voters. There is a love story in which the dual candidate is permitted to entangle himself, but that is largely incidental to the major business of putting on a song-and-dance campaign which anyone who sees it will admit is superior diversion to the actual one now in progress!

George M. Cohan, making his debut in talking pictures—and with fine success, be it said—plays both candidates and manages to differentiate them perfectly. Claudette Colbert is cast as the romantic interest and Jimmy "Schnozzola" Durante as Dr. Varney, the herb doctor's stooge. When Mr. Cohan and Mr. Durante get going in their musicalized political convention the house attaches have to go up and sit on the roof to keep it from being blown off by the laughter!

George Barbier, Sidney Toler and Jameson Thomas are foremost among the supporting players, whose presence is wholly forgotten whenever Mr. Cohan and Miss Colbert and Mr. Durante heave into view.

The bill now entering its second week is augmented by a Vitaphone short subject, "The Yachting Party," featuring Roger Wolf Kahn and his orchestra, assisted by two specialty artists, Lowell Thomas' "King Salmon" and the Paramount Sound News. N. B. B.

LOEW'S PALACE

"SMILIN' THROUGH." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of the play by Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin, adapted to the screen by Ernst Vajda and Claudine West, starring Norma Shearer, supported by Fredric March, Leslie Howard, O. P. Heggie, Ralph Forbes and Beryl Mercer. Directed by Sidney Franklin.

Having already been enjoyed in Washington as a stage play, a silent picture and a melodious operetta, "Smilin' Through," adapted from the romantic drama by Jane Cowl and Jane Murfin, now enters the second week of its presentation as a talking picture, with Norma Shearer, Frederic March, Leslie Howard and O. P. Heggie lending distinction to the principal roles.

Never before has this charmingly sentimental play been so lavishly staged as in this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer version. It is, pictorially, one of the notable achievements of the year. The skill with which the four pivotal roles are played elevates it to a comparable histrionic height.

While Leslie Howard finds himself confronted by the unaccustomed task of having to grow old for a considerable portion of the picture's footage, he also is cast in sufficient sequences permitting him to be himself to score emphatically as Sir John Carteret. Miss Shearer is a lovely and emotionally effective duality of characters as Moonyeen and Kathleen and Frederic March plays with forcefulness and variety the contrasted roles of Jeremy and Kenneth. Mr. Heggie is a sympathetic and helpful old friend of the family.

The introduction of the reveries that permit the action to be shifted to a period half a century away is accomplished without disturbance of the play's smooth-flowing continuity.

The program is completed by the first of the "Silly Symphony" cartoon comedies to be executed in natural colors, "Flowers and Trees," a short-reel of exceptional merit, and the latest issue of the Hearst Metrotone News. N. B. B.

How Coughs and Colds Yield to Creosote

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

3D.C. Women Enter Golf Semifinals

Mrs. Morrow Upsets Mrs. Osborne in M. A. Tourney.

Mrs. Meckley, Mrs. Haynes Also Still in Title Chase.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 13.—It looks like a Washington golfer again will be crowned the women's Middle Atlantic champion. When the battle of the sticks and balls ended today at the Rodgers Forge course, there remained in the tournament three Capital representatives and a lone Baltimore entrant.

Washington presents a formidable line in tomorrow's semifinals in Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, Indian Spring Golf Club, former District of Columbia title holder, who today defeated Mrs. Jerome Meyer, Woodmont, 7 and 6; Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, Columbia Country Club, who won from Mrs. W. Fairfield Peterson, Elkridge Hunt Club, 5 and 4, and Mrs. C. K. Osborne, Army and Navy Club, who conquered Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, Elkridge, 2 and 1.

Mrs. Claude W. Wilhide, Baltimore Country Club, is this city's last hope in the event.

Mrs. Morrow's Defeat Surprises.

The biggest bombshell thrown into the tournament exploded today when Mrs. Morrow, heavy favorite and Maryland State champion, was eliminated by Mrs. Osborne.

Mrs. Morrow, who is president of the Women's Golf Association of Baltimore, was swinging into her game on the first nine and came to the turn 3 up. Mrs. Osborne three-putted several greens on the outgoing journey. On the third Mrs. Morrow laid her a stymie and on the fourth she missed a six-inch putt. On the seventh the Washington linkswoman went out of bounds.

Returning Mrs. Morrow lost the tenth, eleventh and twelfth, but captured the thirteenth. Mrs. Osborne made a good recovery on the fourteenth, where, although she went into the stream, she took a six to her opponent's seven to square the match.

Mrs. Osborne halved the fifteenth and won the sixteenth and seventeenth. On the last hole, Mrs. Morrow found the bank of the stream and missed her first putt for a five, while Mrs. Osborne landed in a grass trap, but holed out in four.

Their cards:

Mrs. Osborne—
Out ..... 4 5 6 6 4 7 7 4 6—49
Mrs. Morrow—

Mrs. Osborne—
In ..... 5 4 4 4 6 6 5 4 x
Mrs. Morrow—
In ..... 6 5 5 3 7 6 6 5 x

Mrs. Meckley had the best round of the day with 41 out, 1 over par. She was right on her game, playing easily and steadily, while Mrs. Meyer was putting poorly.

Mrs. Meckley—

Mrs. Haynes was out in 42 and 4 up at the turn.

RESULTS.

FIRST SIXTEEN—Mrs. C. W. Wilhide, Baltimore, defeated Mrs. H. C. Trace, Rodgers Forge, 2 and 1; Mrs. J. M. Haynes, Columbia defeated Mrs. W. P. Peterson, Elkridge, 5 and 4; Mrs. C. K. Osborne, Army and Navy, defeated Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, Elkridge, 2 and 1; Mrs. Betty Meckley, Indian Spring, defeated Mrs. Jerome Meyer, Woodmont, 7 and 6.

SECOND SIXTEEN—Miss Elizabeth Janney, Green Spring, defeated Mabel Whitely, Elkridge, 1 up; Miss Gladys Grenier, Baltimore, defeated Mrs. D. C. W. Smith, Elkridge, 2 and 1; Mrs. A. H. Stump, Green Spring, defeated Mrs. P. R. Keefer, Chevy Chase, 5 and 4; Mrs. E. B. Mower, Baltimore, defeated Mrs. F. F. Lines, Rodgers Forge, 1 up, 20 holes.

Brooks, Elkridge, defeated Mrs. W. M. Smith, Indian Spring, 4 and 3; Mrs. S. Egerton, Baltimore, defeated Mrs. A. H. Chandler, Rodgers Forge, 3 and 6.

SARACINI PISCHANDO
World's Greatest GOLFER

Strange as it may seem, Signor Pischando is acknowledged as the outstanding golfer of the time. But you know him under another name—Gene Sarazen.

The Magazine Section of The Sunday Post brings to you the fascinating tale of the rise to fame of the compact little Italian from caddy ranks to the 1932 British and American open titles.

Through sheer confidence in his ability and the clever copying of the styles of the stars of his caddy days, Gene Sarazen came to be the leading golfer of the day. That is the story in the

Dusek Slams Vassell to Defeat

Rudy Decides to End Match After Toying With Foe.

Brother Ernie Wins in Slugfest With Steinborn.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

JOE TURNER must be feeding raw beefstake to his pet rassler, Rudy Dusek. Last night the bad boy of the mat won his second straight so-called comeback match, making a vassal out of George Vassell in 54 minutes. Dusek, whipped into a competitive fury rarely seen in this brotherly game, hit the Greek with everything but the Auditorium mortgage.

It looked like the Dusek of a year and a half ago last night, dancing, diving and sparring his way around the ring as if he meant it. Vassell was in the fight for the first half hour, but thereafter Dusek toyed with him, carrying him along to the fifty-fourth minute when he landed a series of headbutts, elbow clouts and finally three back body drops that swung the 210-pound Vassell high up into the smoke-filled Auditorium and deposited him on the mat with a crash that shook the ghosts of the ill-fated Washington Light Opera Company out of the crevices.

Rudy's Little Brother Also Wins.

Rudy's tough little brother, Ernie, who has many of Rudy's mannerisms, including a fair replica of his famous cradle rock, beat Milo Steinborn, strongman-buffoon, in the semifinal, in 19 minutes. It was a good show, which reached its high pitch near the end when Ernie grabbed the prostrate Steinborn by the ankles and spun him around and around like the crescendo of an adagio dance, letting him fly up against a ring post. Steinborn got up and ran into a school of elbows and it was soon over.

Pat McKay, a recent convert from Bowserian Institute, defeated Floyd Marshall in 11 minutes; Fred Grobmier fastened a scissors on Renato Gardini so tenuously that Gardini was unable to make his customary oration, and Chief White Feather, grand old Frankenstein of the mat, slugged to a 30-minute draw vs. Abe Coleman, the ingrown matman.

Miss Hicks Defeats Mrs. Vare in Finals

Hot Springs, Va., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Miss Helen Hicks, of Hewlett, Long Island, sank a 20-foot putt on the twentieth hole today to defeat Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, and win the women's championship in the fall Hot Springs golf tournament. Both are former national champions. The winning putt for a birdie 2 came after a gruelling battle that saw the tide of fortune change constantly.

More bitter to Mrs. Vare, however, was the one-footer she missed herself on the nineteenth, when it appeared to the vast gallery that she had clinched the exciting match. The putt looked good when she hit it. In fact, Miss Hicks had extended her hand in congratulation when the ball circled the rim of the cup and rolled off. Miss Hicks went ahead to take the match on the next green.

Hyattsville Booters Play Maryland Park

Soccer teams of Hyattsville High and Maryland Park High Schools will battle this afternoon on the latter's field in the feature contest of a four-game program involving Prince George's County teams in championship play.

Other games scheduled are between Mount Rainier and Laurel at Mount Rainier, Oxon Hill and Baden at Baden and Upper Marlboro and Surrattsville at Upper Marlboro. The latter two are Southern section contests.

Hyattsville and Maryland Park are undefeated, each having downed Mount Rainier and Laurel. Hyattsville is the defending champion, while Maryland Park was the 1931 runner-up.

In girls' field ball the same teams will face this afternoon, with the scene of play reversed in each case.

Games today mark the conclusion of the first half of play in the championship schedule.

La Salle Gridders Set for Gallaudet

Philadelphians, Hosts Tonight, Seeking Record Win in Row.

Special to The Washington Post.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 13.—LaSalle College, which broke into the winning column for the first time last Saturday with a 24 to 0 victory over the Moravian College gridmen, will seek its second straight triumph and the first at home when it opposes Gallaudet College tomorrow night. The contest will mark the first night game of the season for the proteges of Tom Conley and Marty Brill, former Notre Dame aces. In early battles, LaSalle has lost and tied.

Conley has a pair of brilliant backfield men who will see plenty of action against the Blues. One is Ray Bahr, a veteran of last season, who is an exceptionally speedy ball-toter and has starred all season. The other is Marty Knox, who has played well under the direction of the former pupils of the late Knute Rockne.

Capital Colleges Point for Tests Tomorrow; Georgetown, C. U. and G. W. Near Final Drills

Mills Planning Wide-Open Attack for N.Y.U. Battle.

THE slim chances of Ray Hudson's appearance in the New York University-Georgetown game to be played at the Yankee Stadium tomorrow were whittled down even more yesterday when the Hoya captain and end's bad knee would not support his weight. This afternoon, three hours before the squad departs for its most important game of the year, Hudson will don his uniform and valiantly attempt to compete in a final light workout the Georgetown team stages, to see if by any chance some overnight miracle has cast a wand over the injured member.

Georgetown has been definitely hit in two other spots. Dick Danner, reliable guard, and Mike Lione, crafty little reserve quarter back, are out of the game for several weeks. Charlie Parcells, in whose gazelle-like legs Georgetown places many of its hopes today, is fully recovered from the bruising he received in scrimmage.

Murphy or Alenty To Substitute.

If he is unable to play, Hudson's place will be shared by Dick Murphy and Stan Alenty. Murphy is a 185 pounder whose forte is defensive play. Alenty, 155 pounds, is speedy and a reasonably good pass receiver, but neither is in Hudson's class, nor near it.

Larry Sullivan, 185-pound tackle, showed up well in practice yesterday and probably will supplant Joe Konopka in the opening line-up Saturday.

Once again Georgetown's practice yesterday showed that Coach Tommy Mills plans to do his best to open up the big New York University team as wide as he can. If those N. Y. U. linemen and secondaries converge on Georgetown there seems to be little hope that the Hilltoppers will take the fifth game between the two institutions. Georgetown won the first two, 13-7 and 7-2, and N. Y. U. took the last two, 2-0 and 34-0.

Virginia-Maryland Frosh to Clash Today

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 13.—Virginia's first year football team opens its season here tomorrow afternoon against the University of Maryland freshman eleven.

Against Maryland tomorrow the team will be run by either Munger of the Hill School or Molster of Morristown Prep. Three Charlottesville boys are in line for back field posts. They are Blanton and Quartes, from Charlottesville High School, and Martin, star of Fishburne Military School. Secombe, from Landon Prep, and McKenzie.

Chattanooga to Bring Fast, Alert Squad to Brookland.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 13.—The University of Chattanooga's little team of football giants were crated and shipped for Washington today, Godsped by the entire student body.

They bring up out of the South one of the best reputations for completing forward passes that any team in this region has ever boasted. Most of the passing strength is in the right arm of Tubby Haswell, dynamic little back field ace, who has actually completed 17 out of 21 passes this season, including five out of eight against Tennessee when Chattanooga held the Vols to 13-0.

Against Murfreesboro last week Haswell passed five times to five different teammates, and all were completed. The passes averaged 25 yards. The Moccasins have an outstanding list of pass receivers in Charlie White, end, and Howard Smith, Vic Halbach, Bill Leydorf and Bill Venable, backs.

Venable Shines at Punt Run-Backs.

Outside of Haswell, Venable is the leading ball carrier for the locals. Against Murfreesboro he ran back punts for a total of 235 yards during the game.

The team will arrive in Washington tomorrow morning and practice at Brookland Stadium in the afternoon.

Catholic University will outweigh Chattanooga, but there is not much optimism at C. U. Coach Dutch Bergman, directing his Cardinals through their final stiff workout of the week, pronounced his team's chances as no more than even—if that much.

Although lighter, Chattanooga is the more versatile team, Bergman said. C. U. will be handicapped by the loss of Charlie McVean, regular quarter back, who is out with two twisted knees.

Tickets continued selling briskly yesterday, at Spalding's and at the university, giving further indication that a near-record crowd can be expected.

Congressional Golf Title Tourney Today

The battle to determine the 1932 Congressional Country Club golf champion will open this afternoon, with sixteen players in the title flight seeking honors. Dr. John Shugrue, who paced the field in the medal round Sunday, opposes R. M. Barnett.

The second round will be played Saturday, with all finals scheduled Sunday afternoon. Play in the other flights will commence Saturday.

Colonial Reserves to See Action Against Catawba Eleven.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY is going to take Catawba right in its stride toward the Tulsa game on October 22. Catawba will be met tomorrow night at Griffith Stadium under the lights, but the real objective in the composite mind of the Colonials is that acrobatic crew of Oklahomans who completely befuddled them last year with their unorthodox and not quite believeable methods of throwing and carrying footballs around the lot.

But there is no need for Catawba to believe that they will find a distant look in the eyes of the Colonials tomorrow night—for Coach Pixlee at great length yesterday described the types of teams Coach Charlie Moran has turned out—particularly when he was connected with Centre College. He warned the team that they might expect anything, and that alertness should be their armament.

Colonial Reserves To See Action.

The Colonial reserves, who have been crying for action all year while Fenlon and company carried the burden of duties, will be given plenty of chance to spend their pent-up inhibitions tomorrow night. Joe Edwards, 170-pound half back from Glendale, Calif., who featured yesterday's tough workout, will see some service, as will Johnny Baker, Fenlon's understudy. Fenlon, injured in the Alabama game, will not play against Catawba, but most of his team mates will be in the game at one time or another.

The Colonial line has been made virtually twice as unyielding by the return to the wall of Frank Blackistone and Ras Nielsen, regular center and tackle, who were held out of the Alabama and W. and L. games by Southern Conference rules. Hardy Pearce, big soph, has supplanted Boyd Hickman as a guard, and Tom Dike, who played at center against Alabama, goes back to guard.

Except between the 30-yard lines, seats are selling at 25 and 50 cents at the ball park, Spalding's and the university.

EAGLES SEEKING GAMES.

Games are wanted by the 125-pound Anacostia Eagle Football Team. Call Manager Johnny Severn at Atlantic 0823.

Among the Football Coaches

C. C. N. Y. Team Strikes After Mentor Is Relieved, While South Dakota Squad Petitions for Removal of Bachman.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Dr. Harold J. Parker, head football coach at the College of the City of New York, was relieved of his coaching duties today because of the pressure of his work in the department of hygiene and the news of the change brought a temporary strike by the members of the grid squad.

The decision was made last Wednesday, but it was not announced to the team and to the public until today. The players were somewhat peeved about the sudden removal of the coach, refused to don their uniforms and to start practice until Dr. Parker appeared personally and explained the situation to them. The work then went on under the assistant coaches, led by Bernie Bienstock, C. C. N. Y. captain in 1929.

Dr. Parker had guided the football team for nine years.

VERMILLION, S. Dak., Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Removal of Stanley G. Backman as head football coach at the University of South Dakota was demanded in a petition presented late today to President Herman G. James.

The petition was signed by many members of the football squad, who said they would not report for further practice and will not play the seven games remaining on the schedule unless Backman is removed. Backman was declared to be "incapable of directing our squad."

President James received the petition after the squad had left for Cincinnati, where the University of Cincinnati will be played Saturday.

Backman formerly coached at the University of Cincinnati and the University of Georgia.

Stagg Forced To Retire by Age Limit

Will Quit Next June; "Grand Old Man" Broken-Hearted.

7-to-7 tie on the gridiron last Saturday. He was riding on the crest of the wave because of that victory. Then came the crushing blow of his enforced retirement.

Stagg, although 70 years old, doesn't look a day older than 50. His face, tanned and seared by the life that has been rugged and clean, is not wrinkled nor drawn nor old. His body is vibrant and tough, just as tough as it was when he was made "end rush" on Caspar Whitney's all-American football team in 1888 and later chosen by Walter Camp. His daily tennis game is as fast and as seriously played as it was twenty years ago.

No other coach has approached Stagg's record of 40 years' services at the University of Chicago. From the very first year when he was still a young man, a better athlete than any of the players, he has been known at Chicago as the "Old Man" and as the "Old Man" he will always be remembered and respected by his athletes.

The greatest athletes he coached in football include Walter Eckersall, Walter Steffen, Hugo Bezdek, Pat Page, Clarence Herschberger, Mark Catlin, John Schommer, Walter Kennedy, Tiny Maxwell, H. O. Crisler, now head football coach at Princeton.

Here's Stagg's football coaching record at the University of Chicago:

Games played.	Won.	Lost.	Tied
385	243	104	38

His Big Ten football record:

Games.	Won.	Lost.	Tied.

Penn Cuts 1933 List To Seven Grid Games

Philadelphia, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The University of Pennsylvania will play only seven varsity football games next season. Dr. E. Leroy Mercer, dean of the department of physical education, made this announcement tonight. It is the smallest schedule Pennsylvania has ever listed.

"The schedule conforms to President Gates' plan for a shorter season," explained Dr. Mercer.

Penn's schedule for 1933 follows:

October 14, Franklin and Marshall; October 21, Dartmouth; 28, Navy; November 4, Lafayette; 11, Ohio State; 18, Penn State; 30, Cornell.

Chocolate Stops Feldman in 12th

Referee Stops Bout as Cuban Wins Feather-weight Recognition.

Madison Square Garden, New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Kid Chocolate, sleek little Cuban Negro, won himself a leg on the vacant featherweight title tonight by belting Lew Feldman into defeat by way of a technical knockout in the twelfth round of a fifteen-round match that had the championship sanction of the New York State Athletic Commission.

Chocolate won the right to stake his claim against that of Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, recognized by the National Boxing Association as the successor to Christopher (Bat) Battalino, by hammering the courageous little New Yorker so badly that Referee Patsy Haley finally was forced to step in to save Feldman from further punishment.

The duel was little of an artistic success, and less of a financial triumph, for less than 7,000 spectators gathered to see the slim Cuban, far below the form he has displayed here in the past, whip Feldman for the third straight time.

1933 Army Grid Coach Not to Change System

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Army's football team, under its new coach, Lieut. Garrison H. Davidson, will continue to march against grid opponents in battle formations adapted from the Warner system. When this quiet, soft-spoken young man of 28 takes over West Point's gridiron destinies next June there will be few, if any, changes in the academy's football policies.

"I have no intention of deviating from the existing system when I succeed Maj. Sasse. I am thoroughly sold on the type of football Sasse teaches, and I think the results of his three years have proved them pretty sound," Davidson said today.

The new pilot, although prematurely gray, is the youngest man and the only second lieutenant ever to become head coach of the cadets.

Jess Willard "Broke," He Explains to Judge; Employed as Bouncer

Los Angeles, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Jess Willard, former king of the heavyweights, of the prize ring and later a successful business man, told a municipal referee today he is broke and is working as a "bouncer for about $15 a week" in a meat market he once owned.

He was summoned to court to explain his failure to pay $292.10 he owed to a plumbing company.

The referee asked Willard to explain his job.

"They have a lot of hard-boiled market men out there," he said, "and my main work is that of a bouncer."

Aerial Battle May Mark Contest

Western Boasts Star Passer in Corcoran for Game Today.

Kocsis Chief Hope of Central; Line Seen Stronger.

THE battle for high school football supremacy in the District begins with a low rumble this afternoon when Central and Western, two of the apparent lesser lights in the series, clash at Central Stadium in the forerunner of important games involving Tech and Eastern, the chief contenders for the crown that Tech has held for the past four years.

Central, beaten in three of four of its preseries tests, seemingly has fallen from its once high estate in the scholastic world while Western, hard hit by the injury to Jack Lynham, back field star, has been shorn of many of the hopes once held by Coach Ahern's squad.

Neither Central nor Western has been reckoned in the same class with another formidable Tech team or the new football edition at Eastern, but the history of high school football is rich with form reversals, and early-season showings may count for naught in the game today.

Western Has Edge In Back Field.

Western boasts a decided advantage in the back field. It has Reds Reynolds and Turk Teehan, a pair of line-shattering ball carriers, whereas Central has only Frank Koscis, sturdy full back, whose work in the preseries games marks him as all-high material. The Georgetown aggregation also will have an experienced signal barker in Huck Hilleary.

Central, however, may offset this advantage in the line. Hank Gibbins and Bill King, a pair of giant tackles, stand out head and shoulders over their opponents. Buscher is the only Western lineman in their class. Central's fighting Greeks, Pistolas and Nicoulopos, have advanced rapidly and, teamed with Gibbins and Fisher, give Central a strong line.

Central Seen Weak Against Passes.

Western may take seriously to the air. Corcoran, whose chief attribute is a natural ability to heave the pigskin with unerring aim, will do the passing. More than half of the Charlottesville Fives' gains against Central were accomplished by aerials and all of their touchdowns were the result of passes.

A comparison of the records of the rivals tends to install Western as a heavy favorite. It won its only two games, while Central was returned the victor in only one of its four starts, and in that instance it accomplished the victory by the slim margin of a single point.

But it must be considered that Coggins has preferred to lose the preseries games rather than risk injury to his regulars because of the dearth of capable reserve material. Western, too, has felt the pinch of a small squad, but Ahern has worked his first stringers in every game the team has played.

Western scored a 13-0 victory over Central last season.

SUN DOT, EVEN-MONEY CHOICE, WINS LAUREL FEATURE RACE

Church's Colt Leads From The Start

Tug o' War Is Second Two Lengths Back; Protractor Third.

Poor Ride Costs Cree Decision as Zone Wins Opener.

By WALTER HAIGHT.

SUN DOT, made an even-money choice, carried top weight and made a show of his field to bring a purse to Norman Church in the outstanding race on Laurel's program yesterday. Some 8,000 braved the damp and chilly weather to have their fling at the bangtails and witnessed a return to form of several favorites.

Ridden by Jockey G. Woolf, Sun Dot had a two-length advantage when the judges had their say. Tug o' War was second and Protractor a well-beaten third.

Sun Dot broke on top, had a little trouble shaking off Protractor and was never in trouble thereafter. Woolf had his mount away winging and opened up a four-length lead coming into the stretch. The 4-year-old was well in hand at the finish. Tug o' War came from far back to chase Sun Dot for four furlongs.

Poor Ride Costs Cree Purse in First.

The public sent Cree to the post a favorite in the opener and then witnessed a miserable bungling of the race by Apprentice Jockey W. Morrisey. The winner turned up in Zone, with Hanford in the saddle, with Cree second, a length away, and Epidawn third. Cree held up the start and Morrisey failed to get the gelding away with the first flight. He rode all over the track looking for racing room and finally took the outside to circle the field. Cree was going twice as fast as Zone at the finish, but another favorite had bit the dust.

Brown Pet won the second race over the mile and 70 yards course, taking the decision from Homework and La Salle in the stretch. There was much interference in the race, with both the winner and La Salle suffering. For a time it looked like Homework, with Jimmy Sullivan, Washington boy, in the saddle, would take it all. Homework cut through on the rail, but slowed just before the finish. La Salle was the favorite.

Caesars Ghost, Garner Up, Takes Third.

Mack Garner gave Caesar's Ghost a rousing ride to take the third race, a 6-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds. It was a neck decision over War Stripes, with Pompoleon third. The principal early running was indulged in by Pompoleon, Arrowswift and Dunair. War Stripes was close by, but Garner and Caesar's Ghost were well back. However, Garner took to the rail and came through to beat out War Stripes. Pompoleon was the least tired of the early pacemakers and saved the show.

A favorite made good in the fourth when Fingal, from the E. R. Bradley barn, came from far back to beat Fair Image and Filter. It looked like no contest when Filter turned into the stretch, but Fater whipped Fingal into top gear to draw away at the end.

Monel had plenty of daylight between her and Boscobel in winning the sixth race, while Quiver, a field horse, took the final.

LAUREL RACE TRACK.

DEAR AL:

Don't hesitate to bet on a horse because little Jimmy Sullivan has the mount. This Washington boy, whose dad is an A. A. U. official, has the goods. Of course, he has only ridden one winner. It's a little previous to say that he will be a second Workman, but he really has the goods. I put the glasses on Jimmy and Homework yesterday. The boy was in very close quarters but he worked himself out and had the courage to cut the rail at the stretch turn. True, Homework hung a little in the last few yards and was second, but Jimmy was right there with the whip getting everything possible out of his mount.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—TEABERRY has had my close attention, and I believe she is ready to step down. Must move out of the also eligibles to get a chance, however. Mud will not hurt her chances. MUDRAKER ran well last out. TWO TRICKS for the show.

SECOND RACE—HUFFY loves this course and, although beaten by SPECKLED BEAUTY and LUCKITE the last time, I look for a different story today. Bellhouse to ride. SPECKLED BEAUTY did all asked the last time. LUCKITE for third, but anything can happen in this big field.

THIRD RACE—AVALON showed in his last that he is ready for a winning effort. The rail position may hinder if the track is muddy. SANS COIN is one to fear. Was practically left last time, but today's another day. HYMAN figures to be close.

FOURTH RACE—GLASTONBURY and Elston just got up in that previous effort, and they may not make it so close today. SNAPBACK was good in New York and gets shift in the weights. MARMION is on the improve and is a money possibility.

FIFTH RACE—SNAPLOCK is a fast finisher and gets my edge over this field. POPPYMAN won at the Graw and is the one to beat. GLORIOTONE, on Chicago form, might take it all.

SIXTH RACE—LADINO hasn't shown much to get excited about this fall, but his works have been good and a good ride today might surprise the folks. UNENCUMBERED, particularly if it's muddy, is dangerous. PLAYFOLE for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—DRASTIC DELIGHT comes down a peg, and is my special. FORT DEARBORN and NEGOPOLI for the rest.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ZONE, $8.40, $3.40, $2.40; CREE, $3.80, $2.90; EPIDAWN, $3.30.

ZONE, aveiding interference going to the first turn, followed within striking distance of the leaders until put to a drive, came to the outside and gaining command in the last furlong had enough left to last off CREE. Latter, badly buffeted going to the first turn, was taken to the outside for racing room and could not offset EPIDAWN'S early strong factor from the start, raced the early leaders into submission, but faltered approaching the finish. SIR KENDALL bumped and impeded at the first turn, came determinedly when settled in his stride. CHLORDAIR weakened. PRIVA was outrun. CLEAR KNIGHT and GOLDEN ROCK stopped.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROWN PET, $9.10, $5.80, $3.30; HOMEWORK, $4.90, $2.70; LA SALLE, $2.40.

BROWN PET, hustled into a contending position and kept on the outside to secure racing room, swerved to the inside at the final furlong pole and knocked LA SALLE off stride. He responded stoutly to punishment and outfinished HOMEWORK. Latter, in tight quarters on the inside from the start, slipped through an opening at the stretch turn to gain command, but hung right at the end. LA SALLE, a keen factor from the start, was racing strongly when blocked by BROWN PET when straightened into the home stretch, recovered and outstayed PRIMEVAL. Latter weaved his way between his field during the stretch run after being blocked midway of the final turn and finished strong. VANDAL weakened, as did FAYLIN.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 2:56. Off at 2:59. Winner, Brookmeade Stable's b. c. CAESAR'S GHOST, saving ground early, moved up stoutly after the first half mile and, responding to Garner's urging, outfinished WAR STRIPES. Latter, off slowly, came close to the leaders, secured racing room on the inside of DUNAIR rounding the turn, wore POMPOLEON down and held on in determined fashion. POMPOLEON hard ridden to shake off ARROWSWIFT, tired in the final quarter mile. ARROWSWIFT could not reach the leaders at any stage. BERTRAND went wide until reaching the home stretch; he was gaining steadily at the end. ARROWSWIFT was used up chasing POMPOLEON. DUNAIR had good speed for a half mile. UNFAIR tired.

FILTER raced LOUGH PORT and TINEMA into submission, opened up a winning lead, but weakened fast in the late stages. APPREHENSIVE closed full of run from slow beginning. CATTAIL had speed for five furlongs. LOUGH PORT was taken wide throughout. JACOB'S LADDER and TINEMA quit badly.

Stocks Decline 1.7 Points On Stagnation of Demand

Professional Trading, Sets Smaller Sale Mark of 1,228,490 Shares.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—After a gesture of firmness in the first hour, stocks slid off today.

Trading was dull and substantially professional; but if the decline lacked evidence of renewed liquidation on any important scale it also emphasized the current stagnation of demand.

Trade news over the holiday was favorable in that it pointed to maintenance of upward trends in steel and electricity production, but the reports failed to get much response.

Weakness of American Telephone, which was down nearly 5 points at one time, imposed a drag on the share list, although other departments suffered from the absence of much support. In connection with Telephone's dip, it was recalled that the company's third quarter earnings statement will appear in the next day or two and Wall street is convinced the showing will be considerably under the $2.25 dividend for the period. Installations were down sharply, taking the quarter as a whole, although the rate of loss was materially reduced last month. The next dividend meeting is in November.

Short covering just before the close generally reduced spreads between the day's lows and Tuesday's final quotations. U. S. Steel issues were each off 2 net, Allied Chemical 4½, Case 3, Union Pacific 2½, Consolidated Gas 2½, Chrysler 1½ and General Motors about a point. Rails, on the whole were soggy, notwithstanding indications that last week's loadings, on balance has risen slightly above the previous total.

The market's decline, averaging 1.7 points, canceled about half of what had been gained in Tuesday's rally, although at their lows prices had lost nearly all of that advance. Transactions totaled 1,228,490 shares.

Easing money markets provided the day's chief point of interest. The stock exchange money desk surprised by posting a 1 per cent call loan renewal rate, the lowest since May, 1931, and time money brokers revised shorter maturities down to 1 per cent. Also, some bankers' acceptance dealers pared a quarter of 1 per cent from bid and asked rates on such paper.

In the case of demand loans, the cut merely represented official recognition of an overabundant supply and very limited demand which had been evident for months, having long found reflection in unofficial rates. If the large banks had been trying to maintain a higher rate, it was pointed out, they were finally obliged to conform to actual conditions.

Highest grade bonds stiffened for a time, probably because the market expected a lower rediscount rate, but the Central Bank held at 2½ per cent. The chief result of a lower borrowing basis, bankers suggested, would probably be to strengthen Government bonds. Member bank discounts have been heavily reduced in recent months and excess reserve built up to about $400,000,000.

Declines	308	169

Stocks.

Early firmness signs disappeared as stagnation of demand sent prices down 1.7 points. Dull professional trading marked the session. Declines canceled about half of Tuesday's gains. The turnover was 1,228,490 shares.

Bonds.

The market was dull. A loss of three-tenths of a point resulted in a trading volume of $9,769,000. The foreign section provided greatest activity, and some issues recorded gains.

Curb.

Prices drifted irregularly lower, with utilities losing moderately. Oils held up well. The day's trading dropped to 180,000 shares.

Wheat.

Losses sent wheat under the season's lows. Downward action of the securities markets was followed. The new British tariff and a cut in Winnipeg prices were blamed also. December wheat sold at 48⅛ to 48¼ cents.

Cotton.

Declines clipped prices 28 to 35 cents. Hedging, liquidating and selling were cited as causes. Liverpool reported hedging. December sold at 6.41.

BONDS SENT LOWER ON DULLER MARKET

Foreign Section Is Active in Total Trading Volume of $9,769,000.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The bond market generally was dull, nervous and uncertain today and prices finally developed a moderately lower trend.

While domestic securities mulled about erratically, the foreign section was more than normally active and firm, gains of fractions to 2 or more points being recorded by some bonds of Australia, Canada, Argentina, Germany, Denmark, Norway, Poland and Great Britain. Canadian Government 4s reached a new high for the year, as did British 5½s.

Sales totaled $9,769,000, par value, a large proportion of which was accounted for by the turnover in foreign and United States Government obligations. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans was off three-tenths of a point.

The higher grade maturities held to a steady position, many of them even recording small advances. American Telephone 4s advanced ⅛ of a point to a new high for the year. While quiet, strength was displayed by some loans of Consolidated Gas, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania, Detroit Edison, American Metal, Goodyear, Goodrich, Hudson Coal, Morris & Co., Portland General Electric, Shell Union Oil, Texas Corp. and Standard Oil of New York.

Principal carrier losses were recorded by some liens of Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie, Kansas City Southern, Missouri Pacific, Pere Marquette and Southern Pacific. Nickel Plate issues were up from 1 to 3 points.

Federal obligations were active and irregular. The heaviest trading was in Treasury 4s which rallied moderately. Treasury 3⅛s gained 1-32d of a point while the 3s lost 5-32ds.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Cheap money continues the dominating influence in gilt-edged securities and further gains were made today especially in British government and Australian stocks. Home rails and transatlantic issues rallied, while others were quiet. The closing was steady.

Paris—Trading on the bourse was quiet, awaiting the outcome of the conversations between Premier Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Herriot. Rentes were hesitant, while international shares were firm. The closing was sustained.

Berlin—Buying prevailed on the boerse due to the favorable influence of Chancellor von Papen's speech at Munich. Prices responded and advanced all around. The closing was sustained.

Portugal's Output of Wheat Is Up to 17,859,400 Bushels

Lisbon, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The production of wheat in Portugal this year is officially computed as being 638,853,700 liters (about 17,859,400 bushels) against 458,302,900 liters in 1931.

This result is credited not only to an exceptional agricultural year, but also to an increase of the cultivated area, and a wider use of modern processes of cultivation.

The persistent government and press campaign in favor of "more wheat," which started in 1928, has evidently produced results most satisfactory to the government.

Such production apparently will more than cover the country's requirements, as it is estimated sufficient for fourteen to fifteen months.

Former legislation providing for the mixture of a small percentage of rye flour in the cheaper quality of bread, continues in force. Therefore Portugal will not have to import any wheat, newspapers declare, until the next crop is available. If the production then continues on the same scale, it is hoped that Portugal will cease entirely buying any foreign wheat. Wheat imports formerly represented a heavy drain on the country's gold.

The results are the consequence not only of a strenuous campaign, but are also due to the fact that the farmer finds wheat growing more lucrative than wine and other crops, which were being overproduced.

The Government has attempted to protect by law against speculators setting a fixed price at which wheat should be sold, and opening official granaries where all wheat is accepted at the legal price. These granaries are controlled by an official committee of the National Federation of Wheat Producers.

As a counterpart, all mills are obliged to buy at the legal price a quantity of wheat corresponding to their average output of flour and wheat products, thus assuring an outlet for the stocks the granaries may temporarily accumulate.

Further, the rate of interest on all advance payments on wheat has also been regulated by law, and consequently, it is hoped, the farmer will not have his legitimate profit absorbed by heavy interest and charges.

Hitherto the farmer complained that he was at the mercy of wheat speculators and mills, with the result that he gradually became discouraged and turned to other crops. Through the measures now put in force, the price of flour and bread remain unchanged, but it is hoped that the profit in wheat will be divided between the farmer and the mill.

Woolworth Stores Dividend Regular

Electric Bond & Share Earns $1.44 Net on Common.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—F. W. Woolworth Co. directors today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 60 cents a share on the capital stock, payable December 1 to stock of record November 10. On September 1 the company had 39,132 shareholders, compared with 36,873 a year ago.

The Electric Bond & Share Co. today reported for the twelve months ended September 30 net income of $15,805,810, equal after preferred dividends to $1.44 a share on the outstanding common stock.

Brazilian Traction Co. directors today deferred action on the common dividend until the January meeting in view of existing conditions in Brazil. The shares have recently been receiving 2 per cent in common stock quarterly.

CURB RECORDS LOSS IN QUIETER TRADING

Utilities Decline Moderately as Turnover Drops to 180,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The curb market drifted irregularly lower in a quiet session today. The list firmed a little at the start, sold off rather sharply in spots, then stiffened a little in the final dealings. The turnover of 180,000 shares, was 70,000 shares less than that of preceding session.

Electric Bond & Share, which reported earnings of $1.44 a share in the twelve months ended September 30, was actively traded, dropping to 20⅜, then recovering to close at 22, off 1 point, net. Utilities generally were somewhat heavy. Niagara Hudson lost ¾ of a point, and American Gas & Electric lost more than a point. Brazilian Traction lost a point, on deferment of dividend action.

Oils, however, held up well, reflecting the recent stiffening of midcontinent crude prices. Gulf and Standard of Indiana were up minor fractions at the finish. Newmont Mining was also a firm spot for a time, rising a couple of points, but losing half its gain later.

Aluminum Co. was a soft spot in the industrials, losing more than 4 points. A. O. Smith was down 2, and Deere lost nearly a point, as the wheat market again dipped to new lows for the season.

U. S. TREASURY RECEIPTS.

Treasury receipts for October 11 were $31,276,809.69; expenditures, $59,944,691.53; balance, $786,976,895.78. Customs duties for eleven days of October were $8,782,471.41.

Exchange Interest Rate Drops to One Per Cent

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The New York Stock Exchange interest rate on call loans today dropped to the lowest quotation since May 12, 1931, when a renewal rate of 1 per cent was posted.

Since July 7, the rate had been 2 per cent for this accommodation, but money brokers regarded that rate as nominal. Funds for lending on good security have been pressing on the market in increasingly heavy volume, and as a result money had long been available in the "outside" market at 1 per cent. The downward readjustment of the stock exchange, or "official," rate was in line with conditions existing in the open market.

Call loans are loans made against securities which have a ready market and can be liquidated on call by the lender at his option.

Mexico Will Conclude $10,000,000 Tax Loan

Mexico City, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—The treasury department said today a $10,000,000 tax advance loan by three or four major oil companies operating in Mexico had virtually been completed, following conferences recently between oil officials and Secretary of the Treasury Albert J. Pani.

It was reported here that the deal is being handled by the Chase National Bank, of New York, which would advance the money at 4½ per cent interest, to be retired over a short period of years as the oil taxes fall due.

WHEAT VALUES DROP UNDER RECENT LOW

New British Tariff and Cut in Winnipeg Prices Aid Market Losses.

Chicago, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Outdoing the season low price record for all deliveries, wheat today paralleled bearish action of securities, and responded to reports of heavy rains in Argentina.

Stop-loss selling of wheat was witnessed in the late transactions. World's available stocks of wheat showed 21,047,000 bushels increase for the week, making the total 435,000,000 bushels against 429,000,000 a year ago, exceeding for the first time in months the amount in sight last year.

Wheat closed shaky at about the day's bottom, 1½ to 1½ under Tuesday's finish; corn, ¾ to 1 down; oats, ⅝ to ¾ off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 2 cents.

Foreign Demand Wanes.

With the new British tariff taking effect today, giving 6 cents a bushel preference to Canadian wheat, and with Winnipeg prices at about 4 cents discount, as compared with Chicago, little prospect was in sight for any overseas demand of consequence at present for wheat from the United States. A lowering of British exchange rates was also construed as bearish. Under such circumstances, the wheat market here developed an early downward trend, and at no time showed much power to rally.

With Southern Hemisphere new crops available in a few weeks, today's announcement of a big increase of world stocks of wheat attracted special notice. The increase, 21,047,000 bushels, contrasted sharply with only 1,328,000 bushels increase at the corresponding time last year. Bears also gave stress to an increase of 725,000 bushels in supplies at Minneapolis the last five days, with Canadian rural marketing continuing heavy.

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat weakness. Failure of corn export demand to develop acted as a weight on prices, and so, too, did primary receipts, about double those of a year ago.

Provisions averaged higher, reflecting upturns of hog values.

COTTON PRICES SINK ON SALES PRESSURE

General Market Collapses 28 to 35 Points; Hedging at Liverpool.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Declines of over $1.50 per bale in cotton today were attributed to increased hedging combined with liquidation and Wall street and local selling promoted by more favorable weather for the movement in the South and weak grain and stock markets.

December contracts broke to 6.37 or 33 points below Tuesday's final quotation, and closed at 6.41, the general market closing steady at net losses of 28 to 35 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 to 7 points under an increased volume of Southern selling through spot houses on orders accumulated over the holidays. There was also some New Orleans and local selling on reports of improved Southern weather. While initial offerings were fairly well taken by trade buying and covering, prices worked almost steadily lower later.

Active Months Lose.

The lowest levels were reached during the afternoon with March selling off to 6.52, and active months generally showing net losses of 30 to 35 points. At 6.37 for December the market was at the lowest level touched here since that delivery sold at 9.66 on the advance of late last August. There was a little more trade buying as well as covering on the closing rallies of some 2 to 5 points from the lowest.

Such bullish features as appeared in the weekly report of the Weather Bureau appeared to have been discounted, while some thought the report was more favorable than expected. Carded cloth statistics indicating sales for September 2.6 per cent in excess of production received some bullish comment, but appeared to be without much effect on the market.

There were reports of a better business in spot cotton, with a continued firm basis, but most of the hedge selling here was said to be coming from two or three of the larger houses. Liverpool cables said that hedging and local liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling in that market and reported a more optimistic feeling in Manchester as to the settlement of the spinning wage dispute. Exports today, 23,617 bales, making 1,526,027 so far this season. Port receipts, 29,835 bales. United States port stocks, 2,753,463 bales.

Industrial Group Reports Upturn

Work-Producing Activities of Companies Help to Aid Trade.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—E. T. Weir, vice chairman of the national committee on industrial rehabilitation, told the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce today that "American business is on its way out of the throes of the depression."

"The gratifying response of industrial leaders to the program of work-producing activities proposed by the committee proves this beyond question," he said. Mr. Weir, president of the National Steel Corporation, asserted that "$50,000,000 immediately available for rehabilitation, improvement, maintenance and repairs indicates that this world is by no means finished."

He announced pledges of U. S. Steel, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Remington-Rand, Westinghouse, National Steel, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, and read letters from other industrial leaders who have undertaken work programs by production for stock and purchase of raw materials for inventory greatly in excess of the actual current business.

KEITH LEASE SIGNED BY HUYLER'S STORE

Company Renews Contract for Five Years; Two Decades in Capital.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Having found the location a successful one, Huyler's has renewed from the B. F. Keith Corporation, its lease of premises 617 Fifteenth street northwest, in the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Building, for a period of five years. This store of the well-known firm of confectioners has been located here for 20 years, its original lease being made in October, 1912. The original lease was for five years and there were subsequent renewals for terms of five and ten years respectively.

The office of H. Clifford Bangs, handling negotiations incidental to the transaction, also has leased to Fashion Shop, Inc., for a term of ten years, premises 1300 F street northwest, on the ground floor and including the entire second floor in the new building erected by the Brownley estate at the southwest corner of Thirteenth and F streets northwest. The entire space including four stores and a cafeteria in this building was leased by the Bangs office prior to completion of the building. Both the foregoing announced leases have a combined rental value in excess of $200,000.

The Southeastern Group Conference of Building and Loan Associations which comprises the States of Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi and Tennessee, will be held today and tomorrow at the Cavalier Hotel at Virginia Beach.

The following Washingtonians left last night on the Norfolk-Washington boat to attend the conference: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bergmann, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Quinter, Mr. and Mrs. C. Clinton James, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Baltz, Robert E. Buckley and Chapin Bauman.

Mr. Quinter is on the program to respond to the address of welcome and Mr. James will make a report on Federal legislation. It is expected that the conference will be largely attended as the Home Loan Bank bill will be one of the important subjects for discussion.

SHIP FARE ADVANCE WILL BE DISCUSSED

Meeting Called This Month to Take Up Problems of Atlantic Trade.

New York, Oct. 13 (A.P.).—Problems of the shipping trade, including proposals for an upward revision of first class transatlantic fares, are to be discussed at a meeting of the North Atlantic Conference this month.

Members are said to be disappointed over the outcome of reductions in fares, averaging around 20 per cent, put into effect last April. While travel increased in the summer, most shipping companies found the cut in rates did not raise their gross income.

Shipping officials said there was a jump in tourist and third-class business but, with fares reduced, the margin of profit was not sufficient to offset reduced income in the first-class department caused by lower rates and continued light traffic.

Although conference members are not unanimous on the advisability of advancing rates, a survey by the Fitch Publishing Co., says the preponderance of opinion seems to be that sooner or later there must be a strengthening of rates all along the line.

To combat the slump in both passenger and freight traffic resulting in a rise of some 35 per cent in idle tonnage during the past year, the largest shipping organizations are instituting economies.

Most of the conference programs have dealt principally with doing away with competitive building tonnage, curtailment of sailings to give equal distribution of traffic volume, and the stabilization of rates. Mergers of competing lines also have been undertaken to eradicate destructive competition.

The shipping depression is severe, but it is felt any substantial upturn in world trade will bring quick benefits to ocean traffic.

U. S. Treasury to Sell $75,000,000 in Bills

(Associated Press.)

Acting Secretary Ballantine announced last night the Treasury would receive bids for $75,000,000 of 91-day Treasury bills next Monday.

The bills, which will be sold to the highest bidder, will be dated October 19 and mature on January 18. The money derived will be used to retire an equal amount of maturing bills.

BOTH PARTIES PLAN ARLINGTON RALLIES

G. O. P. Meeting to Be Held in Lyon Park; Democratic at Ballston.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The two major parties in Arlington County will stage their fourth mass meetings of the campaign tonight.

The Republican meeting, under the auspices of the Young Republican Club, will take place in the Lyon Park Community House. The speakers will be Robert E. Bentley and Miss Helen Cunningham, both of Washington.

The Democratic meeting will be in the auditorium of the Ballston Firemen's Hall under the auspices of the Woman's Democratic Club of Arlington County, with Mrs. Catherine M. Rogers, president, in the chair. Speakers will be Assemblyman Wilbur C. Hall, of Leesburg, and Mrs. Alma Partridge, attorney, of Washington.

Henry S. Clay, of Clarendon, has been appointed secretary to the Arlington County school board. He fills the office temporarily held by Miss Florence Gravett, school supervisor, upon the resignation of F. J. Hallock.

The monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Patrick Henry School will be held tonight in the school auditorium. Mrs. Ruby G. Simpson, of the county school board, will speak.

Physical examination of the pupils of the Arlington County schools was started yesterday by Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, and Mrs. N. R. Davies, school nurse. Dr. Chichester stated this examination is in addition to the hurried examinations made at the opening of the schools. The examination will include all children in the elementary and junior high school grades.

Fairfax Highway Equipment Is Sold

Auction Result of State Secondary Road Act; $1,700 Netted.

The road machinery and equipment owned by Fairfax County, Va., that was not taken over by the State Highway Department under the State secondary system law, was sold by the county board of supervisors at public auction for approximately $1,700.

The entire quarry equipment was sold to Earl W. Saum, of Mount Vernon District, for $1,287.05, the largest amount of the sale. The county supply depot equipment was sold in small lots with bids ranging from 25 cents to $30 and consisted of miscellaneous small tools, machinery, automobile parts, repair machinery and used automobiles.

The board of supervisors met after the sale in the boardroom of the county courthouse and adopted a resolution asking the judge of the Circuit Court to confirm the bids so that the goods can be delivered to the purchasers, according to the Virginia law.

Newspaper Is Upheld In Montgomery Action

Judge Robert B. Peter yesterday sustained the demurrer in the cases of Walter Mobley vs. Montgomery County Commissioners and the Maryland News, holding that since the county received full value for its money it would not be fair to force the newspaper to pay back to the county money received for county advertising and printing.

Mr. Mobley had filed suit to force the newspaper to repay the county on the grounds that the contracts had been illegally granted since several members of the board of county commissioners were members of the board of directors and were stockholders in the newspaper.

Charges Against Woman In Waif Case Dismissed

Judge J. Chew Sheriff, of Prince Georges County, yesterday dismissed charges against Ethel Thomas of neglecting a minor child found in an abandoned shack near Berwyn, Md., and returned her to the orphanage where she had lived for seven years.

The woman was arrested last week, several days after a 7-year-old boy had been found in the shack. Authorities at St. Ann's Orphanage, nearby, identified the child as hers, and said the woman had lived there until they objected to her association with a man. She then left the home, they reported. The child was later committed to the orphanage and the mother was sent to join him by Judge Sheriff.

WATER COMMITTEE PERSONNEL LISTED

Montgomery Civic Group to Assist in Study of County System.

Personnel of the special committee of the Montgomery County Civic Federation, which is to cooperate with similar committees from the Bethesda and Silver Spring Chambers of Commerce in an exhaustive study of the water and sanitary system of the county, was announced last night by Frederic P. Lee president of the federation.

Those appointed were Stephen James, of Linden, delegate at large and chairman of the federation committee on public finance and budget and former president of the federation; W. H. Reynolds, North Woodside Citizens Association, chairman of the federation committee on sanitation and public health; Joe V. Morgan, Edgemoor Citizens Association; W. I. Cleveland, Kensington Chamber of Commerce; John A. Dickinson, Alta Vista Community League, and Walter R. Tuckerman, Bradley Hills Community League. Mr. James is chairman.

The committee is created under the provisions of a resolution adopted by the federation at its last meeting and is empowered to receive and consider suggestions from the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission as to increasing the existing water supply and changes in the financial machinery and organic law of the commission, and like matters. The committee also will serve as a forum for receiving and considering similar suggestions from other civic organizations or individuals. It is expected that the committee will hold a number of hearings and prepare a report, prior to the session of the Maryland Legislature next January.

The report probably will lay before the citizens facts regarding the sanitary commission's operations which, despite previous reports by the civic federation on various phases of the subject, have not been fully understood by the residents of the county, together with additional factual matters not covered in such reports. It is expected that the report also will embody such recommendations as may be found desirable as to changes in the law or in the commission's methods, together with working out of some plan for providing and financing an additional water supply from one of the several available sources.

The committee's efforts will be entirely constructive. The report of the committee will not in any wise bind the civic federation until that body has subsequently taken action thereon.

Maryland Farmer Hurt When Charged by Bull

Basil Mobley, Derwood, Md., farmer, is in Montgomery General Hospital at Sandy Spring, Md., with painful injuries as the result of an encounter with an enraged bull owned by him Wednesday night. He was taken to the hospital in the ambulance of Warner E. Humphrey, Rockville undertaker, and treated for a fractured leg and badly torn flesh wounds on his body.

Mr. Mobley had entered the stall of the animal to make him fast when the bull suddenly charged him, pinning him to the wall of the stall.

NEW CHARGE LOOMS IN POWER FIRM SALE

Riggles Will Make Protest Monday on Disposal of Annapolis Company.

Allegations of irregularity in the receiver's sale of the Annapolis & Chesapeake Bay Power Co. will be made to the Maryland Public Service Commission by John R. Riggles, chairman of the public utilities committee of the Prince Georges County Federation of Citizens' Association, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Riggles has already charged that there was "a gentleman's agreement" between the Annapolis company and the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Co. of Baltimore, which was the only bidder at the receiver's sale, held on September 30. Mr. Riggles has been behind numerous efforts to have the Prince Georges property sold to Potomac Electric Power Co.

The protest to the Public Service Commission will be made Monday when the commission will consider approving the sale of the Annapolis Co. Accompanying Mr. Riggles will be other members of the federation and a delegation of citizens from Laurel, the only large town in the county served by the Annapolis unit.

The power company, a subsidiary of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad, went into receivership at the same time as the parent company. Mr. Riggles addressed several letters to the Potomac company asking it to buy in the property, but the Baltimore concern was the only one to offer a bid. Rates of the Potomac power company, whose territory adjoins that served by the Annapolis utility, are less than half of the Annapolis rates, and frequent complaints have been made about this discrepancy.

Shortly after the Annapolis property was sold to the Consolidated, Mr. Riggles appealed to the Department of Justice, suggesting that a violation of the antitrust laws might be found in the "gentleman's agreement" which he charged existed. Nugent Dodds, Assistant Attorney General, replied, saying that the department had found no such violation.

"However," Mr. Dodds wrote, "if you have evidence tending to prove the actual existence of such an agreement and that any act was done in furtherance of the agreement, it will be proper for you to furnish such evidence to this department for its consideration."

The sale must be approved by both the Public Service Commission and the United States District Court. The hearing Monday, before the commission, is the only one at which Mr. Riggles plans to be present, it is believed.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

IF everybody in the country voted for Hoover in November he would not be elected then. But everybody will not. Not one vote will be cast for Hoover, and not one will be cast for Roosevelt in the November election. Voters of the country are not permitted by the Constitution to vote for the presidential candidate.

When you cast your presidential ballot you do not vote for the candidate you favor. You vote for a man you probably never heard of before—a presidential "elector." Or rather you vote for a group of electors, for in the presidential election the election goes by States. From any one State all of the electors will be of the same party.

They are equal in number to the number of senators and representatives from their State. In theory they have the right to choose any man they care to as the next President. They are honor bound, however, to vote for their party's candidate.

The electors gather in their respective States early in January following the November election and cast their votes for their candidates. The voting is a mere formality, for if the State has gone Democratic every elector chosen in the November election will vote for Roosevelt. Their vote is forwarded to Washington where it is counted before Congress in joint session in February.

It is not until then that the next President of the United States will be elected.

Colors give added realism to strange things and happenings illustrated by John Hix on a full page in The Sunday Post.

D. C. NEWSDEALERS WARNED BY ROVER ON BREVITIES SALE

Action Follows Conviction of Two Arrested for Handling Paper.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday served public notice on newsdealers here that he would hold them personally responsible if they offered for sale any edition of Washington Brevities that his office considered indecent.

Mr. Rover's warning followed closely the conviction in Police Court yesterday of Joseph Ottenstein and George Winter on charges of having offered for sale copies of the August 27 issue of the Brevities. Both men are scheduled to be sentenced tomorrow. Mr. Rover's statement in full follows:

"Hereafter no warning will be given to persons selling or offering for sale the publication known as Washington Brevities.

Penalties Are Cited.

"The merchants of this city, who have been handling this paper, should by now be fully aware of its character and object.

"Whenever an issue of this publication, in the opinion of this office, offends against the law condemning indecent and libelous publications, the immediate arrest will be ordered of all those responsible for its publication and distribution, as well as those selling or offering it for sale, and if convictions are had the court will be asked to impose substantial penalties.

"The statute condemning indecent publications provides for a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500, or imprisonment of not more than one year or both; while the penalty for criminal libel is a fine of $1,000, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, or both.

Warning to Merchants.

"I deem it only fair to call the attention of the reputable merchants of this city to the fact that section 908 of the District of Columbia code provides that all persons aiding or abetting the principal offender are just as guilty as the principal offender himself, and that anyone selling or offering for sale an indecent or libelous publication is under the law aiding and abetting the person or persons who publish or distribute such publications."

In a drive last year, instigated at the request of Mr. Rover, police arrested 133 newsdealers for offering for sale indecent publications. In three separate test cases Assistant United States Attorney Michael S. Keogh obtained convictions, and the cases are now awaiting the outcome of an appeal.

SNEAK THIEVES GET $20,000 HOTEL LOOT

Bank Notes Stolen in Room at Mayflower Not Thought to Be Negotiable.

Sneak thieves turned keys forgotten in outer locks by two guests at the Mayflower Hotel some time after midnight Wednesday and made away with $150 in cash and bank notes valued at $20,000, which are not believed to be negotiable.

Jefferson P. Chandler, of Los Angeles, who is attending the American Bar Association convention, reported theft of his wallet, which contained $150 in cash and a number of personal cards. The wallet was lying on the top of a bureau inside the room.

Former Gov. E. F. Morgan of West Virginia, who is now solicitor in the Department of Commerce, reported the theft of a number of certificates of deposit, four United States Treasury checks and two building and loan notes, but no cash. His wallet was inside his coat on a chair just inside the door. The discovery was made before 9 a. m. and Mr. Morgan immediately notified all banking institutions to refuse payment. He explained that the certificates of deposit were not due, so that it was doubtful whether any one would attempt a forgery of his indorsement.

The detailed statement of Mr. Morgan's loss is as follows: Certificate of deposit on Riggs Bank, $2,161.38; certificate of deposit on Federal-American National Bank, $5,016; certificate of deposit on Commercial National Bank, $3,515.65; four checks on the United States Treasury, valued at $324.64; two notes of the Charleston Building and Loan Association, one valued at $3,000 and the other at $3,600.

2 Clerks Sought In $2,000 Fraud

Warrants Out for Hotel Attaches as Funds Are Missing.

Warrants were sworn out last night for the apprehension of two clerks of the Fairfax Hotel, Twenty-second street and Massachusetts avenue northwest, who are suspected of having absconded with funds of the hotel.

Charles P. Gay, manager of the hotel, told police that a total of about $2,000 had been taken during the last few months. He said he had talked with the clerks on Wednesday night about the missing funds. Early yesterday morning the clerks are alleged to have left suddenly in an automobile.

The names of the clerks were given as Harry O. Waterfield and Roy J. Garlett. Both had been employed at the hotel several months.

Lindbergh Case Figure Held Here

Man Who Said He Knew Abductors Jailed on Bad Check Charge.

Arthur Hitner, whose claim that he knew the abductors of the Lindbergh baby brought him notoriety some months ago, was brought here last night from Warrenton, Va., and charged with passing a bad check. An official of the Mayflower Hotel acted as complainant.

Detective Sergt. Clarence Tally, attached to police headquarters, went to Warrenton and returned with Hitner, who was at liberty on bond, facing similar charges there, police said.

Hitner is said to have been the person who duped Dean Dobson-Peacock, one of the three negotiators in the Lindbergh case, into believing he was keeping an engagement with representatives of the baby's abductors.

Berwyn Man Is Hurt In Bladensburg Crash

Robert E. Humphries, of Berwyn, Md., was seriously hurt early yesterday when the car in which he was riding crashed into the historic Washington House in Bladensburg after a collision with a truck. Humphries was taken to Casualty Hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad, and his injuries were diagnosed as a fractured skull, a broken right arm, several broken ribs and multiple cuts.

The Washington House, now a hotel, is reputed to have been visited by George Washington and was built in the year of his birth.

G. U. Student White House March Halted

Enthusiasm ran riot last night when students at Georgetown University got so uncontrollably "pepped up" over what the Hoyas would do tomorrow to the New York University Football Team that they suddenly decided to tell the President about it.

Clad in pajamas, bath robes and other skimpy habiliments, the students formed a parade and started to the White House, sweeping everything before them. In fact one policeman, who sought to halt their march, was said to have actually felt the tread of many heels.

Near the White House they got caught in the mass and jumble which enmeshed many a pedestrian and automobile driver last night. In the meantime the dean of the university learned of the parade and came after his "peppy" boys. With the help of police he broke up the parade, but only after about ten of them had been arrested on various charges.

Chest Striving to Protect Children During Depression

Safeguarding Washington's children through the depression that the next generation of citizens may be preserved physically and morally was the keynote of the talks made yesterday at the third day's session of the Community Chest speakers' institute at the Willard Hotel. Dr. Frederick W. Perkins, president of the Council of Social Agencies, presided.

"Today's beggars are tomorrow's bankers or bootleggers," declared Linn C. Drake, Scout executive, Boy Scouts of America, in discussing the emergency problems of boys. "Boy energy is human dynamite and unless properly disciplined is very dangerous and is fertile soil for evil influences," he said.

Mr. Drake briefly outlined the problem of the transient boys, forced out by economic necessity and a prey to all the dangers of such a life.

Mrs. Harold Doyle, of the Y. W. C. A., told of the work done by her organization among adolescent and unemployed girls; Miss Katharine Lenroot, of the United States Children's Bureau, discussed the dangers to children of the Nation, arising from the depression.

Newbold Noyes, Community Chest campaign chairman, and Elwood Street, director of the Chest, will outline the "Plan of Campaign for the Community Chest's 1933 Drive" at the closing session of the institute today.

U. S. Legation in Sweden Now in Charge of Woman

Precedent in American Diplomacy Is Set by Third Secretary.

"The minister left last night. I have assumed charge. (signed) Willis," was the text of a cablegram received by Secretary of State Stimson yesterday from the American Ministry at Stockholm, Sweden.

When the State Department had determined who "Willis" was, it became known that a new page had been turned in American diplomatic practice. For the first time in history, a woman, Miss Frances Elizabeth Willis, of Metropolis, Ill., is the acting American Minister to a foreign country.

Further inquiries at the State Department developed the fact that Miss Willis was the third secretary of the legation and one of the two women in the entire foreign service of the United States.

For a month she will have the responsibility of discharging the duties of the head of the ministry. The American Minister, John Motley Moorehead, has just left Sweden to return to this country on a payless furlough. In the absence of others, Miss Willis became the ranking official.

Miss Willis first entered the foreign service five years ago. She was first assigned as vice consul at Valparaiso. Then she little thought that she would assume the duties of minister in such a short period.

Besides Miss Willis there is only one other woman in the foreign service. She is Miss Constance R. Harvey, vice consul at Milan. Miss Willis is 33 years old and Miss Harvey, 28.

Although there have never been bars to women entering the diplomatic service, it was until after the World War period that any essayed such a career. Since that time there have been only about six. All but Miss Willis and Miss Harvey terminated their careers through marriage.

SETTING OF 45 FIRES CONFESSED BY MAN

Prisoner Says He Started as Many as 15 Blazes in Night to See Engines.

Harold Banks, colored, of 1200 New York avenue, has confessed to starting 45 fires in the downtown section of the city during the last month to "see the engines run," according to an announcement made yesterday by Fire Marshal Calvin Lauber.

According to Mr. Lauber, the man started as many as fifteen fires in one night, none of which was serious. He was arrested following the discovery of fires in the rear of several houses in Twelfth street, near I street northwest, recently.

Prior to coming to Washington, Banks lived in Richmond, Va., and police are checking his activities there, according to Mr. Lauber.

Four other men, said to be friends of Banks, have been arrested and are being held at the First Precinct station for investigation.

Doctor Attacked By Alms Seeker

Is Beaten After Refusing Request; Suspect Is Arrested.

Dr. Ralph Duffy, 54, 2002 P street northwest, suffered cuts and bruises on his face and body when he was assaulted yesterday morning by a colored man to whom he had refused to give alms. The man accosted the physician and asked for alms at Seventeenth street and New Hampshire avenue northwest. The doctor refused his request and the man went on his way.

The doctor continued down Seventeenth street to Q street, where the colored man suddenly dashed up and started beating and kicking him. After succeeding in beating off his assailant, Dr. Duffy called Third Precinct police, who later apprehended the man at Fifteenth and Church streets.

He was charged with assault and soliciting alms on the street. His name was given as Richard Jackson, age 36, and address 1321 Eighth street northwest.

Case Containing Music Stolen From Parked Car

Whether the thief was really musical, or whether he just "cussed" his luck were questions police wondered about last night in connection with the reported theft of a case containing music from the car Celestine Adams, member of the Washington Light Opera Company, while parked yesterday at her home, 3929 Jenifer street northwest.

The music was valued at $100. Miss Adams said the music was largely operatic numbers, several being French scores which are now out of print.

5 Youths Use Gun In $17 Robbery

Grocer's Life Threatened as Small Boys Loot Cash Register.

Jacob Skolnik, a grocer at 1644 B street southeast, reported to police that he was held up and robbed last night of $17 in cash by five small colored boys, one of whom was in knee trousers. He said the boys entered the store together, one of them asking for a package of cigarettes.

Suddenly one drew a revolver. When he saw the revolver, Skolnik said he shouted: "Take the money quick, but don't shoot me."

After taking the money from the cash drawer the boys fled and the grocer chased them until they escaped from his view on Sixteenth street.

HOWARD BOYD RITES WILL BE TOMORROW

Professor of Georgetown U. Law School Died After Collapse in Class.

Funeral services for Prof. Howard Boyd, of the Georgetown University Law School, who died early yesterday morning following a collapse Wednesday evening while lecturing before his class, will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Prof. Boyd, who had been a member of the law school faculty for 22 years, collapsed while one of his sons, Howard, jr., sat facing him in the classroom. Only the day before he had appeared before the District Court of Appeals to move that another son, Ralph S. Boyd, be admitted to the District Bar.

Born in Hancock, Md., in 1869, Prof. Boyd spent most of his life in Washington, obtained his law degree from Georgetown in 1895 and practiced law in the District.

His mother was a Miss Taney, direct descendent of Chief Justice Taney of the United States. Shortly after his admittance to the District bar, Prof. Boyd married Mary Violet Stewart, of Washington.

In 1929, when Congress authorized a revision of the District of Columbia code, Prof. Boyd was appointed, with Edwin A. Moores, to do the work. The results were recently published and he was working on a supplement at the time of his death.

He was a member of Sigma Mu Phi fraternity and was active in the organization's affairs.

Besides his wife and two sons, he is survived by two daughters, Miss Esther Boyd and Miss Helen Boyd, the latter is a member of the District bar; a brother, Harry, of Philadelphia, and a sister, who is a nun in a California convent.

Taxicab Regulations Enforcement Planned

The Public Utilities Commission, with the aid of the hack inspection force of the Police Department, intends to aid the street railways to the extent of urging enforcement of District regulations against taxicabs and other vehicles driving on street car tracks so as to obstruct the traction cars.

A conference on the matter was held yesterday between William A. Roberts, special counsel of the commission, and Thomas Mason, hack inspector. The hacking inspection bureau recently was increased in personnel from two to ten men with the view of enforcing taxicab regulations promulgated by the commission some months ago.

ROOSEVELT PRAISED AS LEADER BEFORE DEMOCRATIC GROUPS

Fight on Power Interests Is Described by Harvey at Joint Meeting.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for the Presidency, was described as a sympathetic, courageous and able executive in an address delivered by Richard S. Harvey, president of the Independent Democratic Club of Washington, at a joint meeting of that club and the Woman's National Democratic Club held last night at the clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

"In the face of reluctant support by a reactionary Republican Legislature," Mr. Harvey said, after reviewing the record of Mr. Roosevelt in the Federal service during the World War, "Gov. Roosevelt procured approval by the people of his State of a bond issue of $50,000,000 to provide ample housing facilities for those dependent wards of the State, the insane and the inmates of the State prisons.

"In the broad field of public utilities, this Democratic governor was ever mindful of the interests of the average citizen—the ultimate consumer. He insisted upon reasonable rates by the service companies and refused to their putting on the weaker shoulders of their customers all the costs of installation.

Fought Power Interests.

Gov. Roosevelt, Mr. Harvey said, courageously fought the great power interests in New York. "The extent of these interests," he continued, "and the identity of the party which they dominated can be clearly determined when it is told that the head of the power trust of the State of New York had been appointed chairman of the Republican committee of that State."

The Republican stand on prohibition was characterized as contradictory in an address delivered last night by Henry Alan Johnston, of New York, members of the executive committee of the voluntary committee of lawyers, before a political rally held in the headquarters of the District Democratic central committee at 1320 G street northwest.

Rum Poll Report Near.

Results of the poll on prohibition made by the American Bar Association at the instance of the voluntary committee will be made public before election, Mr. Johnston said.

Although he did not profess to give the detailed results of that poll his auditors received with enthusiasm his declaration that national sentiment demanded a straightforward opportunity to vote on the question of repeal. He emphasized the nonpartisan character of the poll by saying the committee comprised more Republicans than Democrats and there had been efforts made to suppress results of the poll until after election.

H. Steinmetz store on Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Mr. Zirkin established his own business 47 years ago.

ROBERT C. HOWARD.

ROBERT C. HOWARD OBSEQUIES TODAY

Funeral of Late Insurance Man Will Be Held From Church This Morning.

Funeral services for Robert C. Howard, 62, well-known insurance and real estate man and a lifelong resident of Washington, who died Wednesday at his home, 1872 Newton street northwest, from a heart attack, will be held this morning at 10 o'clock at St. Paul's Catholic Church, Fifteenth and V streets northwest, followed by interment in Congressional Cemetery.

Well known in realty circles and a member of the firm of Bradley, Beall & Howard, and the Washington Board of Trade, Mr. Howard attended the public schools and Central High School here.

Mr. Howard was one of the organizers of the movement to bring the Benedictine Order to Washington more than eight years ago. As a young man he was famed as an oarsman. He was a prominent member of the old Analostan Boat Club and the Knights of Columbus here. He had been in the insurance and real estate business for more than 40 years.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Georgette Howard, he is survived by a daughter, Jean Ross Howard; two sisters, Francis, of this city, and Mrs. John A. Ashburn, of Los Angeles, and two brothers, John C. and George T. Howard, both of Washington.

Bronze Figure to Honor Work of Jane A. Delano

A bronze figure typifying compassion, mercy and other attributes of nursing will adorn the memorial in honor of Jane A. Delano at the American Red Cross headquarters, it was announced yesterday.

Adolph Alexander Weinman, of the Fine Arts Commission, had insisted on a nurse in uniform for the figure, but announced yesterday that he would not oppose any other plan. The plan for a figure of a nurse had been opposed by American nurses of the World War.

MRS. M. M. SHAW RITES.

Will Be Held at All Souls Sterrett Memorial Church.

Funeral services for Mrs. May Marvin Shaw, resident of Washington for many years, who died Wednesday in Atlantic City, will be held at 3 p. m. today at All Souls Sterrett Memorial Church, Connecticut and Cathedral Avenues, instead of at All Souls Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest, as previously announced.

The change was announced by the family.

FOXHALL SCHOOL'S CONTRACT HELD UP; HEARING IS PENDING

Bids Are Opened, but Further Action Will Be Delayed; Low Is $75,400.

Bids on the Foxhall Village School, the site of which has been protested to the District Commissioners, were opened yesterday by R. M. Brennan, chief clerk of the Engineer Department, and A. Lloyd Goode, of Charlotte, N. C., was found to be low bidder with an estimate of $75,400.

The contract for construction of the school will not be awarded until the complaint of Foxhall Village residents is given consideration by the Commissioners. In a petition presented to the District heads last week, residents complained that the site purchased on Foxhall road, between Volta place and Q street, was such as to attract an "undesirable" class of children to the school.

Complications Are Seen.

Those protesting against the selected site want the school erected on Reservoir road. District officials point out, however, that complications would result from the purchase of the second site unless disposition can be made of the Foxhall road tract at the price paid for it.

The controversy over whether the Taft Junior High School is to be built with or without a cupola is meanwhile raging with a public hearing scheduled for next Tuesday. Indications are that Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, intends to adhere to his previous decision that the tower must be eliminated from the plans for the sake of economy.

Is Hobby of Architect.

The cupola, for which residents adjacent to the proposed school are making such a fight, is a hobby of Municipal Architect Albert L. Harris. Most of the schools which he has designed are characterized by the little tower, once intended to hold a bell but now serving no utilitarian purpose.

So pleased is the municipal architect with the decorating device that he has placed it on the fire engine house now under construction at Thirteenth and K streets.
